Freighter Sinks In North Pacific: Hunt for Crewmen

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Four ships converged today on an area about 870 miles southwest of Kodiak, Alaska, where 42 crewmen jumped overboard from a sinking freighter into the icy waters of the North Pacific, the Coast Guard reported.

The Coast Guard said one of the vessels which went to the rescue, the Igaharu Maru, radioed she had picked up "some bodies" and "two men were reported to be alive."

There was fear that others who jumped from the sinking Pan-Oceanic Faith into the sea could not survive the cold for long.

Reports from the rescue ships were scant, the Coast Guard said, and the names of the other three ships on hand were not immediately available.

All 42 men aboard the freighter were reported to have jumped when the 459-foot vessel suddenly sank shortly before dark.

In New York City, the owner of the ship, the Pan-Oceanic Tankers Corp., identified the master as Capt. John F. Ogles, of Alexandria, Va., a master for the company since 1961, and the chief engineer as Harry K. Bradley, of Glendale, Calif.

Navy, Coast Guard and other North Pacific seafarers estimated a person rarely survives more than an hour in the cold water without proper clothing. They said the cold saps the body temperature away within minutes.

The Coast Guard said the sinking was so sudden the crewmen did not have time to launch the ship's two lifeboats or two life rafts.

A Navy search plane from Adak, Alaska, and a C145 Military Air Command jet Starlifter dropped seven small rubber life rafts to the crewmen bobbing around in life jackets, the Coast Guard said.

The pilot of the Navy plane radioed that he saw several men climb into the tiny craft.

Both planes remained in the area to direct rescue operations of at least a half dozen ships headed for the scene, including the Coast Guard cutters Dexter and Storier.

Another Coast Guard C130 rescue plane from Hawaii is en route with survival gear.

The Pan-Oceanic Faith first radioed a distress call at 2:55 P.M., saying 20-foot waves were sweeping over her decks and filling No. 1 and No. 2 holds with water.

The message also said the ship's engines were failing, and she was in danger of sinking. The 23-year-old vessel, owned by the Pan-Oceanic Tanker Corp. of New York City, was en route from San Francisco to Yokohama, Japan, with 10,200 tons of fertilizer.

Coast Guard district headquarters said radio reports from the scene were infrequent, and radio contact was difficult because of the storm.

New Delay Hits Apollo Flight

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A moon program official at the Manned Spacecraft Center says "intricate little details" piled up and forced a newly announced delay in launch date for the first manned Apollo flight.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Office of Manned Spaceflight said Monday in Washington that a new Apollo calendar calls for the flight to take place in "third quarter, 1968," meaning next July at the earliest—perhaps August.

Originally, astronauts were due to test the moonstrip in space last February, but on Jan. 26, a month shy of launch, the prime crew for the first Apollo flight died when the craft caught fire during a ground test at Cape Kennedy.

Until Monday, NASA stood by plans to make the shot with the new crew no later than March 1968. It had become clear in recent days, however, that the target was impossible.

Kenneth S. Kleinknecht, the spacecraft center's manager for the passenger and propulsion sections of the Apollo spaceship, said Monday, "all of the intricate little details of all the changes that we made have just caught up with us."

Circleville Man Charged In Fatal Shooting of Wife

Promotion Campaign Opens

School Levy Is 'Critical Need'

Promotion of the proposed 2.8 mill operating levy for the Circleville School District got underway Monday evening with a "kick off" meeting at the high school.

Approximately 75 people were on hand for the session which dealt primarily with the critical need for passage of the levy.

Spearheading the informative program was Superintendent Fritz Jacobs, and members of the Board of Education, Robert Johnson, president of Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce, spoke to the group briefly and pledged the support of the chamber.

Russell Palm, local business man and farmer, will head up the promotion campaign.

TWO schools closed . . . six teachers released from duty . . . overcrowded classrooms . . . under-supplied teachers and classes . . . These are the existing conditions in the city's school system that have resulted from the electors' failure to provide operating funds, according to Jacobs. Jacobs also pointed out several other areas of curtailment that are due to a lack of operating funds.

"The issue is a simple one. Either we pass the levy or suffer the consequences," the group was told.

If the voters do not provide the school with needed operating funds by the end of this year the state may cut the school off its support program on the grounds that the system fails to meet minimum requirements, Jacobs noted.

At present, the state aid program provides almost 50 per cent of the schools operating funds.

Should the school be found to be drawing less than the state set minimum of 17.5 mills of support by the end of this year the State Board of Education could place the local school district under an adjacent school district that meets its requirements. Circleville presently pays 16.5 mills of support.

Should the school be placed in a neighboring district, local residents would be forced to pay the school taxes of the new district, without having an opportunity to vote on the issues.

ALL adjacent districts already have higher school taxes than those proposed for Circleville, according to Jacobs.

An open discussion followed presentations by the school officials and civic leaders.

It was the consensus that efforts should be concentrated on getting informed voters to the polls to vote for the levy. Some people are against an increase in taxes — no matter how small or for what reason and efforts to convince them of the need is futile.

"We are fighting for the existence of education in Circleville and keeping it under local control. We must not let the complacent and the uninformed defeat this levy," a board member said in summation.

FDA Experts Squelch Notion That Sweeteners Hazardous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration, responding to inquiries it said came from some consumers, says there is no scientific evidence to show widely used artificial sweeteners are a hazard to health.

However, the FDA said studies of the chemicals are continuing in the United States and abroad.

"If at any time the scientific evidence shows some basis for restricting the use of artificial sweeteners, the FDA has the authority to take action," the agency said.

The FDA made the statements in an apparently little-publicized "Fact Sheet" which an agency spokesman said was prepared early last month because of inquiries.

The question of safety "is asked with increasing frequency as beverages and food products sweetened with sugar substitutes multiply on supermarket shelves," the sheet said.

"Articles in newspapers and periodicals citing possible dangers related to the artificial sweeteners also contribute to the concern on the part of consumers.

The publication added: "The safety of artificial sweeteners—saccharines and cyclamates—has been reviewed periodically for more than a decade.

"As is true of a wide array of other food additives developed by industry, the artificial sweeteners have undergone extensive toxicity testing in past years. They are listed among the additives 'generally recognized as safe' by scientists in and out of the FDA.

"The new factor, of course, is the vast increase in the use of the artificial sweeteners, particularly the cyclamates. When first introduced, artificial sweeteners were used primarily in the diets of diabetics.

"Now, cyclamates are used as sugar substitutes in many soft drinks, dessert, and a variety of other product being promoted for low calories content to a weight-conscious society. Not only those with special diet needs, but many normal, healthy people, including children, are eating and drinking artificially sweetened products."

Party Leaders Favor Nixon for Nomination

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon has topped a nationwide Associated Press poll of Republican leaders who were asked to name their favorite for the GOP presidential nomination next year.

However, the strongest potential ticket would be composed of Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California, those participating in the survey replied. A Nixon-Reagan combination ran second.

Associated Press bureaus submitted a three-part questionnaire to the state chairmen and members of the GOP National Committee in all 50 states. About half replied.

The questions and results were:
1. Whom do you favor for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination?

Nixon—46 per cent
Gov. George Romney—26
Rockefeller—14
Reagan—7
Others—7

2. Which Republican has the best chance of defeating President Johnson?

Nixon—41 per cent
Rockefeller—23
Romney—25
Reagan—11
Others—13

3. What combination of candidates for president and vice president would offer the strongest ticket?

Rockefeller
Reagan—40 per cent
Nixon-Reagan—25
Nixon-Sen. Charles Percy—11
Romney-Reagan—11
Others—13

As expected, much of Nixon's support came from Republican leaders in the South and Southwest but he had votes in some Midwest and Far Western states as well.

Some of those who participated in the survey indicated that while they consider Nixon the GOP's best qualified candidate, they have misgivings as to whether he can win. He lost the presidential election in 1960 and the race for governor of California in 1962.

Rhodes Wants Ohio To Be Export Leader

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes declared here today that "all possible steps must be taken within the next three years to make Ohio the No. 1 export state to help provide more and better jobs for our expanding labor force."

The governor spoke at a session of the World Marketing Conference at the University of Cincinnati. He promised that Ohio would become NO. 1 in exports by 1970, outlining a number of trade missions and world trade fairs scheduled in 1967-68-69.

He said 75 of the state's leading industrialists will accompany him Nov. 4 for a 15-day trade mission to South America; and that in March, 1968, 150 businessmen will participate in an Ohio trade show in Japan.

Later, in the autumn of 1968, he said Ohioans will conduct a trade mission to Australia and New Zealand. A second Ohio trade show will be held in Brussels in 1969, following a trade mission to the Scandinavian countries and parts of Europe.

"Ohio is the No. 1 end product state," the governor said. "In this enviable position and with Lake Erie and the St. Lawrence Seaway on the north and the Ohio River on the south there is every reason why we can become No. 1 in exports."

He urged Cincinnati area leaders to speed formation of a port authority, and said:

"With concentrated and diligent efforts, Cincinnati can be the largest and best inland port and port authority in the Ohio Mississippi River basin. . . It is vital to the Cincinnati area that this port authority become a reality at the earliest possible moment for it can lead to thousands of additional jobs for this area."

Dems Believe LBJ War Policy Will Beat GOP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats are betting an upswing in popular acceptance of President Johnson's Vietnam war policies will pull him through a tough battle with the Republicans for reelection in 1968.

Their spirits obviously dampened by the President's current low standing in the polls, members of the Democratic National Committee are banking that in the long pull Johnson's course in fighting a limited war in Asia will win over any alternative Republicans may offer.

They quickly approved Monday a resolution endorsing Johnson's policies at home and abroad. There was no mention that this seemed the only road open to a party so tightly controlled by an incumbent president that his nomination is regarded as inevitable.

Recognizing the present widespread dissent to Johnson Vietnam policies, a resolution sponsored by Illinois committeeman Jacob M. Arvey said "in both foreign and domestic policy President Johnson has consistently chosen to secure the future, rather than to yield to the dictates of short-term political gain."

The resolution, adopted unanimously with a brief patter of applause, said Johnson has sought "an honorable resolution of the conflict in South Vietnam, by which the people of that nation might be freed of terror and bloodshed and able to govern themselves in conditions of social freedom and justice."

It expressed "our conviction that Americans will always accept the responsibilities — domestic and foreign—required of a great free people and will stand behind the President in foul weather as in fair."

This seemed to spell out the belief of the Democrats that as time goes on, voters will become resigned to his conduct of the war with the feeling that no Republican opponent is likely to chart any more satisfactory course.

National chairman John M. Bailey discounted in an interview the need for any change in the rules of the 1968 convention—beginning Aug. 26 in Chicago—which would require delegates in advance to support the nominee.

"Anybody who goes to that convention will know that President Johnson is going to be the nominee," Bailey said. "Why would they even want to go as a delegate if they felt they couldn't support him in the general election?"

Guevara Death Is Unofficial

Newsman Allowed To Inspect Scene

LA PAZ (AP) — The Bolivian army command withheld confirmation today of a local commander's report that Ernesto Guevara has been killed but planned to fly newsmen to the remote area where army dispatches said he died leading a guerrilla band.

The high command's invitation to the journalists suggested it would display a body reported to be that of Guevara, the leading theorist of Communist revolution in Latin America.

The former lieutenant of Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba was reported killed Sunday in a clash at Higuera, about 400 miles southeast of La Paz. Col. Joaquin Zenteno Anaya, commander of the 8th Army in the area, said Guevara was one of a number of guerrilla casualties.

The army's chief of staff, Col. Marcos Vasquez Sempertegui, noted that official reports from Vallegrande, near Higuera, "confirm Guevara was killed and that his body is now with the"

Party Leaders Favor Nixon for Nomination

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon has topped a nationwide As-

Ask Safeguard For Jerusalem

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Pakistan is expected to call again in the U.N. General Assembly for some assurance that Israel will take no further steps to alter the status of Jerusalem.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Syed Sharifuddin Pirzada plans to concentrate on the Middle East in his policy speech today before the 122-nation assembly, informed sources said.

During the assembly's emergency session on the Middle East last July, Pakistan presented two resolutions calling on Israel to "desist forthwith" from any action designed to change Jerusalem's status.

Both resolutions were approved without any opposing votes, but Israel made clear it would not comply with them. Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said they ignored the "affirmative aspect" of Israel's unification of the two sectors of Jerusalem and have an inaccurate picture of the situation there.

Arab leaders in Jerusalem charged last month that the Israelis had violated the sanctity of Moslem shrines in the Old City, dynamited more than 100 houses near the Wailing Wall and expelled 650 Moslems from their homes in that sector.

Israeli leaders told the U.N. that the complaints were made mainly by representatives of the firebrand Palestine Liberation Organization of Ahmed Shukairy and were not representative of the Arab population.

The Israelis had been expecting a concerted assault in the assembly by the Arab members and their allies against the annexation of Jerusalem. But Israeli informants have indicated that their government does not intend to give ground.

Israel is anxious to stave off intervention by the United Nations or any of the major powers in its dispute with the Arabs because it remains committed to the principle of direct negotiation. The Israelis still remember the Suez war of 1956 when they bowed to foreign pressure and gave up at the conference table what they had won on the field of combat.

John McMurray, "They (Idaho working Republicans) still have reservations. If he shows well in the early primaries Nixon will be hard to stop."

Similarly, Mrs. J. C. Mann, Texas national committeewoman, said she considers Nixon the "best qualified" and that she has strongly supported him before. She added, "But I want somebody to win this time. I don't believe that the people who go to conventions and choose candidates are always representative of the way the people feel who will be voting."

A significant result of the poll was Reagan's strong showing. He was mentioned many more times than any other potential candidate as the choice for the vice presidential nomination.

Replying to the question about the strongest ticket, a party leader said, "Rockefeller and Reagan—either way."

Rockefeller and Reagan have both said they are not candidates. Teaming, some of those questioned said, would give the party a balanced ticket which would appeal to both the conservatives and moderates.

Rockefeller ran ahead of Gov. George Romney of Michigan—whom he supports for the nomination—in answers to the question of which Republican would stand the best chance of beating the President. In some replies, GOP chiefs indicated they felt Romney's "brainwashing" statement may have cost him some support.

Said the chairman of a New England state, who asked not to be identified, "We are still with Romney. If he doesn't tell, I would favor Rockefeller."

Among those mentioned for the vice presidential nomination were Sens. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, John G. Tower of Texas and Mark Hatfield of Oregon, along with Govs. James A. Rhodes of Ohio and Claude Kirk Jr. of Florida.

A number of Republican leaders who declined to participate in the survey said, "I just haven't made any decision," or, "It's too early to tell."

Some answers indicated that state presidential primary elections next year will take on more than the usual importance. Said McDill Boyd, Kansas national chairman, "I think first we should see the horses work out in the field for a while."

A Nixon aide, former Oklahoma Gov. Henry Bellmon, said recently Nixon will enter primaries in New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Indiana and Oregon.

Third Official Resigns from OU Business Staff

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Roger Converse, Ohio University vice president for business affairs, Tuesday became the third person in his department to resign amid reports the school was planning to change a tentative agreement with the public employees' union.

Converse cited "personal reasons" for his resignation, as did David Wiant, OU personnel director, and Robert Barnett, business manager, who resigned Monday.

Wiant and Barnett were principal university negotiators in the agreement worked out with Local 1699 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. Converse, their supervisor, sat in on the sessions.

The university had no comment on union reports that the school was planning to change provisions of the agreement, which included a one-step pay raise, paid hospitalization, pay for time lost on union matters and continuance of grievance procedures.

The agreement is expected to come up for action at Friday's meeting of Ohio University trustees and was to have been formally approved by the union Tuesday.

The union postponed its Tuesday meeting, saying it wanted to wait until the situation in the school's business office was resolved.

Ohio U. President Vernon R. Alden said he would personally handle school business matters until a successor is found for Converse.

Informers Sought In Rights Hearing

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — Justice Department attorneys may produce in U.S. District Court witnesses paid by the FBI to give key information in the 1964 slaying of three young civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss.

Testimony of the informers is regarded as the heart of the government's case against 13 white men, including a Ku Klux Klan chieftain and three lawmen.

All are charged with conspiracy to violate the three slain workers' civil rights.

The conspiracy trial went into its second day today.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. John Doar, the Justice Department's chief civil rights troubleshooter, told a all-white jury of seven women and five men Monday that the slayings were plotted long summer of civil rights turmoil in this deep South state three years ago.

After the trio's charred blue station wagon was found in snake-infested swamplands by Indians on June 23, 1964, President Johnson ordered 400 sailors from the Meridian Naval Auxiliary Air Station to search for the workers. Their bullet-riddled bodies were found buried 15 feet in an earthen dam by FBI agents on a farm eight miles southwest of Philadelphia after a 44-day search.

Doar, who heads the Justice Department's civil rights division, told the jury that paid informants broke the case. He said their testimony would be offered during the trial.

Among the 13 defendants are Imperial Wizard Sam Holloway Bowers Jr., a Laurel coin machine operator who heads the Bolivian army." But he emphasized that he could not confirm the dispatches.

The official reports said: "The rebels put up desperate resistance and suffered five casualties, among them presumably Ernesto Che Guevara." Some military sources said Guevara was mortally wounded and talked to his captors before he died.

Guevara's legend has been sprinkled with reports of his death or capture since he mysteriously disappeared from Cuba in 1965. He was said to have died in the leftist revolt in the Dominican Republic, to have been captured in Peru, hiding out in his native Argentina, scouting the Congo and a visitor in Red China. Two weeks ago the Bolivian army denied a report that its forces had killed him.

At a meeting of the Organization of American States in Washington last month, Bolivian diplomats produced photographs of a man who looked like Guevara talking with Bolivian and Cuban guerrillas. They claimed the photos showed he was heading the rebels in Bolivia's isolated mountain regions.

Guevara's training as a guerrilla came in Castro's Sierra Maestra Mountain campaign that led to the overthrow of President Fulgencio Batista in January 1959.

He became Castro's economic minister, then vanished in 1965. Castro said Guevara had gone elsewhere to lead new insurrections.

3 Bound Over To Grand Jury

Three men were bound to the grand jury Monday by Municipal Court Judge Sterling Lamb. Fred E. Rittenhouse, 457 Dearborn Ave., pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking and entering with attempt to commit personal assault on Freda Rittenhouse. His bond was set at $1,000.

Charges with breaking and entering the residence of Dr. Robert J. Filling, Lockbourne, and attempted theft were Richard Dale Adkins, and Billie Paul Harris. Both men pleaded guilty as charged and were bound over to the grand jury on $5,000 bond each.

School, was at the home within four minutes.

According to reports, Hill walked out of the house and "disappeared" after the shooting. He was allegedly never further away than "a couple of blocks" from the scene of the slaying while an intensive search was being made of the area by authorities.

Police believe the gun used was a 38 caliber revolver. The slug entered the victim's lower left chest and exited through the right side of the body.

Although Patrolman Leonard Sines, the first officer at the scene following the shooting, detected a slight heartbeat when he arrived, Mrs. Hill was pronounced dead on arrival at Berger Hospital by Coroner Ray Carroll.

The bullet pierced Mrs. Hill's heart, severing several arteries, reports said.

Police believe that at least four of the Hill's eight children may have been in the house at the time of the shooting. Adults witnessing the shooting were Anna Huffman, the accused man's sister, and Mrs. Mattie Pence, the mother of the slain woman.

AFTER eluding searchers for nearly six hours, Hill reportedly went to the home of Thomas Lowery, 930 S. Washington St. He asked Lowery to call the Sheriff's Department because he wanted to give himself up.

The sheriff went to the Lowery residence, but could not find Hill. He appeared at the sheriff's office a short time later, accompanied by Cary and John Blevins and his brother, Lindsey Hill.

Hill has been sentenced to the Ohio Penitentiary five times. In 1939, he was handed a sentence of 1-20 years for auto theft. A like sentence for a similar crime was imposed in 1942. In 1946, he was sentenced to a term of one to two years for breaking and entering. In 1950, he was sentenced to the penitentiary for 1-20 years for forgery.

His latest term was served for non-support. He was only recently released according to authorities.

Hill was a roofer. He was "laid off" work last week police said.

Born April 9, 1924, Mrs. Hill was the daughter of Jesse and Mattie Sanders Pence.

SHE is survived by her husband, William Allen Hill and her mother Mrs. Mattie Pence. Other survivors include four sons: Mike Hill of Orient, William, Alfred and Talmer Hill of the home; four daughters Carolyn of Circleville, Diane, Vera and Virginia all of the home.

Also surviving are eight brothers Clarence Pence of the U. S. Army serving in Germany, Alfred Pence of Columbus, Fred Pence of Shelbyville, Ind., and Joseph, Bryce, Kelly, Charles and Leroy Pence of Circleville.

Services will be 1:30 p. m. Thursday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland, with the Rev. Alonzo Hill officiating. Burial will be in New Holland Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Funeral Home beginning 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Navy Research Panel Calls Safety Measures Obsolete

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Navy panel formed after a disastrous aircraft carrier fire has found many safety measures lag behind the times and tempo of operations.

Adm. James S. Russell, head of the panel, suggested a number of improvements even before his group's final report is forwarded later this month to Navy chiefs, sources report.

The improvements include installing additional firefighting and damage control equipment as well as changes in its design and location aboard the ships.

Russell also proposed that safety instructions be spelled out clearly in booklets for the crews.

The Russell panel was created in August soon after 131 Navy men died in a fire that almost gutted the carrier Forrestal standing off North Vietnam. Russell came out of retirement temporarily to handle the job.

Sources familiar with the group's preliminary findings said the Russell panel concluded that many safety measures on the carriers were based on the experience of World War II.

These days, carriers are on station longer than formerly and conduct more sustained operations.

The safety precautions have not kept up with the pace of operations and the times, sources said the Russell group found.

The panel leader has told his superiors he was impressed with the level of experience of commanding officers and command pilots, that key officers were well-chosen, and that the deck crews were well-motivated, even though they work as much as 15 hours a day.

In response to inquiries, the Navy said: "There are some areas where improved techniques and operations can be inaugurated at the local level."

"These center primarily around a revitalization of damage control techniques, weapons handling and storage, and training of personnel."

Sources said the Russell group—which visited the carriers Constellation, Intrepid, Coral Sea, and Oriskany—felt there was a tendency toward haste by crewmen under pressure, particularly when—as happens off North Vietnam—there are frequent aircraft takeoffs and landings 12 hours a day, every day of the week.

This kind of pressure, it was said, results in attempted shortcuts, with resultant increased chances of accidents.

It was said normal dangers are magnified by the tremendous amount of ammunition being handled in connection with preparations for air strikes.

It was found that, in some cases, safety devices tend to get rusted, worn or lost.

Most Unusual Coffee Break Held in Dignified Setting

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A cardinal's silver bell in the Vatican at 10:30 every morning opens one of the world's most unusual coffee breaks.

Bearded patriarchs and red-shaded prelates file eagerly out of the meeting of the Roman Catholic synod of the bishops for one of the assembly's biggest successes.

In an adjacent room, waiters have arranged three large tables and a machine that makes steaming cups of espresso. Amid animated conversation, the bishops nibble on sugared pastry and wash it down with coffee, tea, milk, soft drinks or fruit juice. Nothing alcoholic is served.

The prelates can also light up cigarettes, cigars or pipes. Smoking is banned inside the meeting room.

The half-hour coffee break is an important part of the synod for several reasons.

While cooling off or warming up the bishops, it also works for complete concentration in the synod room when business is being discussed.

During the 1962-65 ecumenical council in St. Peter's basilica, there were two bars but no scheduled break. As a result, bishops constantly streamed out for something to drink or eat, and there were some complaints that this caused disruption.

The synod's coffee break also sets a mood of comradery and informality which many say is important for the historic meeting.

The bishops may differ on pressing church problems like night and day in the synod room. But the cutting edge of debate loses its sharpness when they mingle and chat about everything from the weather to a particularly interesting point in a speech they have just heard.

The synod bar—as Italians call coffee shops—has given Pope Paul VI an opportunity to stress his close relationship with bishops in a collegial atmosphere. During the coffee break at the synod's first working session Sept. 30, the Pope circulated among the bishops for the full half hour.

The Russell panel was created in August soon after 131 Navy men died in a fire that almost gutted the carrier Forrestal standing off North Vietnam. Russell came out of retirement temporarily to handle the job.

Sources familiar with the group's preliminary findings said the Russell panel concluded that many safety measures on the carriers were based on the experience of World War II.

These days, carriers are on station longer than formerly and conduct more sustained operations.

The safety precautions have not kept up with the pace of operations and the times, sources said the Russell group found.

The panel leader has told his superiors he was impressed with the level of experience of commanding officers and command pilots, that key officers were well-chosen, and that the deck crews were well-motivated, even though they work as much as 15 hours a day.

In response to inquiries, the Navy said: "There are some areas where improved techniques and operations can be inaugurated at the local level."

"These center primarily around a revitalization of damage control techniques, weapons handling and storage, and training of personnel."

Sources said the Russell group—which visited the carriers Constellation, Intrepid, Coral Sea, and Oriskany—felt there was a tendency toward haste by crewmen under pressure, particularly when—as happens off North Vietnam—there are frequent aircraft takeoffs and landings 12 hours a day, every day of the week.

This kind of pressure, it was said, results in attempted shortcuts, with resultant increased chances of accidents.

It was said normal dangers are magnified by the tremendous amount of ammunition being handled in connection with preparations for air strikes.

It was found that, in some cases, safety devices tend to get rusted, worn or lost.

Most Unusual Coffee Break Held in Dignified Setting

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A cardinal's silver bell in the Vatican at 10:30 every morning opens one of the world's most unusual coffee breaks.

Bearded patriarchs and red-shaven prelates file eagerly out of the meeting of the Roman Catholic synod of the bishops for one of the assembly's biggest successes.

In an adjacent room, waiters have arranged three large tables and a machine that makes steaming cups of espresso. Amid animated conversation, the bishops nibble on sugared pastry and wash it down with coffee, tea, milk, soft drinks or fruit juice. Nothing alcoholic is served.

The prelates can also light up cigarettes, cigars or pipes. Smoking is banned inside the meeting room.

The half-hour coffee break is an important part of the synod for several reasons.

While cooling off or warming up the bishops, it also works for complete concentration in the synod room when business is being discussed.

During the 1962-63 ecumenical council in St. Peter's basilica, there were two bars but no scheduled break. As a result, bishops constantly streamed out for something to drink or eat, and there were some complaints that this caused disruption.

The synod's coffee break also sets a mood of comradery and informality which many say is important for the historic meeting.

The bishops may differ on pressing church problems like night and day in the synod room. But the cutting edge of debate loses its sharpness when they mingle and chat about everything from the weather to a particularly interesting point in a speech they have just heard.

The synod bar—as Italians call coffee shops—has given Pope Paul VI an opportunity to stress his close relationship with bishops in a collegial atmosphere. During the coffee break at the synod's first working session Sept. 30, the Pope circulated among the bishops for the full half hour.

Shirley Temple's Election Chances Rated Excellent

SHIRLEY TEMPLE
By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer
WOODSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black is running for Congress on a platform that's against crime in the streets, the way President Johnson conducts the Vietnam war, and for racial harmony and moral regeneration.

FELL TWO MILES — Navy Petty Officer Joseph Thrift, 34, gets a kiss from his wife in hospital in San Diego, Calif., where he is recovering from a skydiving fall of 12,000 feet. His parachute failed to open completely, and he hurtled down at an estimated 100mph. He is suffering internal injuries and a spinal fracture.

Tribunal Ignores Racial Balance Issue in Cincy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to decide if Cincinnati school officials have a Constitutional duty to balance the races in the city's public schools.

The court acted on an appeal by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People from a ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court in Cincinnati that "boards of education have no Constitutional obligation to relieve against racial imbalance which they did not cause or create."

The NAACP said the circuit court had "misconceived" the reach of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. At no time, the NAACP said, has the Supreme Court held that the amendment's "mandate of equal educational opportunities was affected by the motives of school officials."

Only Justice William O. Douglas noted that he believed the Supreme Court should decide this issue. It takes the approval of four of the nine Supreme Court justices to have the court hear a case.

Vice Squad Discovers 'Cool' Drug Party

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Police said they found 10 persons at a cool drug party Sunday.

Officers raided an apartment after neighbors complained of noise and the host was nude when he answered the officers' knock.

Two other persons, including one of the three women, also was nude, said John Hasley, a vice squad detective.

All 10 were charged with possession of marijuana.

House of Representatives from San Mateo County, California's 11th Congressional District.

Mrs. Black, a Republican, is running against 12 other candidates, six Democrats and six Republicans. Her chances of victory in the special election Nov. 14 are regarded as excellent.

What this country needs above all else is a moral renaissance, says Mrs. Black, now 39, a bit plump, wife of wealthy businessman Charlie A. Black, and mother of three.

"I think it never been worse—the personal hypocrisy, the lack of integrity, the apathy," she told an interviewer. "My personal opinion is that we don't have any inspirational leadership at the top."

Mrs. Black put part of the blame on the mass communications media, including newspapers.

"We're building up the Rap Browns and the Stokely Carmichaels," she said. "I would prefer to read more about American heroes, like our astronauts."

As for the war in Vietnam, Mrs. Black said: "President Johnson should rely more on the advice of the Joint Chiefs of Staff than on the advice of Defense Secretary (Robert S.) McNamara."

"Obviously, civilians make the policy. But after the policy is made, that's the time you bring in the key military leaders, in order to form the strategy and tactics of how to achieve your goals."

Aligning herself with the hawks in the debate over what to do in Vietnam, Mrs. Black said she thought U.S. forces should mine the approaches to Haiphong, the principal port, to cut off military supplies from Red China and the Soviet Union.

This may sound surprisingly hard-nosed to folks who remember Mrs. Black as the curly tressed little darling who made a million dollars in the movies before she was 12.

Mrs. Black commented that she wasn't running as "little Shirley Temple."

Nevertheless, soon after she decided to file for Congress she had her name on the voting register changed from "Shirley J. (for Jane) Black" to "Shirley Temple Black." California law requires that a candidate's name on the ballot and the voting register be identical.

"I'm very proud of my past," said Shirley. "At least people know what I was doing as a child. I wasn't stealing hubcaps."

Mrs. Black is by no means brand-new to politics. She has campaigned for Republicans in local and state elections for years, and helped carry San Mateo County for Ronald Reagan.

Another actor-turned-politician, when he was elected governor last year.

The congressional election is to fill a vacancy caused by the death last June of Rep. J. Arthur Younger, a Republican.

If no candidate wins a majority, there will be a runoff between the top two finishers, regardless of party, on Dec. 12.

Mrs. Black's leading Republican opponents are Sheriff Earl Whitmore, who has been elected six times, and Paul N. McCloskey, an investment company president who won the Silver Star and Navy Cross in the Korean War.

Her main Democratic rival is Roy Archibald, a San Mateo City councilman. Another Democratic hopeful is Edward Keating, former publisher of Ramparts magazine, making his second campaign for Congress as a "peace" candidate.

Mrs. Black has formidable financial backing. One member of her finance committee is a good friend from her Hollywood past, Bing Crosby.

Home Team Wins 1st Pizza Bowl

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Teams from three colleges gobbled 260 pizzas Sunday in the first Pizza Bowl at the University of Pennsylvania.

The home team won, teeth down.

The eaters—five to a team—representing Penn, Drexel Institute of Technology and Temple University, squared off in the plaza of Penn's Student Union building.

Army Maj. John Sturm, of nearby Elkins Park, won the speed contest by downing 1 1/2 of the 12-inch pizzas in ten minutes. The 31-year-old native of Manawa, Wis., is working on a masters degree in transportation at Penn's Wharton School and expect to be assigned to Vietnam early next year.

Joel Silverman, a junior in the Wharton School from Woodmere, N.Y., took the endurance contest by putting away four pies between 2 p.m. and 4:45 p.m.

Kroger Employees Threaten Strike

CHARLESTON, W. Va., (AP) — Employees of Kroger Food stores in West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio have threatened to strike if a contract settlement isn't reached.

More than 700 of the 1,300 members of the Food Store Employees Union met here Sunday and voted to allow the union negotiating committee authority to set a strike date.

Another negotiating session is set for Tuesday morning in Charleston. The old contract expired at midnight Saturday.

About 65 Kroger stores in the three states are involved.

LETTERS IN BLOOD—Militant Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang (seated, hatless) reads protest letters written in blood by one of his aides as reporters take notes in Saigon. Automated Detection

Crime continues to grow in the United States, and at a frightening pace in some of the more serious types, but the day may not be far off when a computer will uncover a crime, discover the identity of a suspect, follow him until he is captured, and produce the evidence to convict him.

Computers and other sophisticated electronic gear now are used in all phases of police work but not yet in the total combination described above. That day is rapidly approaching, however, as law enforcement begins a large-scale revolution in crime detection techniques.

What law officers are doing is taking advantage of some of the electronic wizardry created for the space program and military needs. Simultaneously they are employing the storage and recall capacity of computers to provide almost instantaneous identification of suspects.

Probably the most complete computer system to date is NCIC, the FBI's National Crime Information Center in Washington. Linked with seven state computer systems and metropolitan networks in the largest U. S. cities, NCIC contains files on persons who are wanted for violation of federal statutes or against whom there is a felony warrant outstanding.

But the computer is primarily a time-saving information bank. In law enforcement there are more exciting tools coming into play. One of the latest is the Voiceprint. The findings of Voiceprint, reported to be more reliable than fingerprints, have been admitted as evidence in several court cases.

Many lesser known devices help fill the law official's bag of tools in his duel with the underworld. A sniffer, which can locate human odors over great distances, is a product of the Vietnam battlefield. Neutron activation analysis, which measures the atomic half-life of elements, is used to trace evidence back to its origin.

Heat cameras, to produce silhouettes of missing objects, instruments or emission of particles left at the scene of a crime, a chemical spray which instantly stuns a person, a dart injector gun which can quiet a violent hombre with tranquilizers in seconds—these are but a sampling of the tools modern law enforcement has at its disposal. All are needed in the perpetual war on crime.

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Who among us has not complained of one or more of the following difficulties:

1. Everything I eat turns to fat.

2. I can take it off, but I can't keep it off.

3. I can gain weight if I look at food.

4. I eat practically nothing, but it all sticks to my ribs.

There are many more ways to cop a plea for the fact that we eat too much and do not use any of the calories in an energetic way. Just for the record, I am a member of the same club.

Doctors are always frustrated, as are their patients, when after a successful weight loss, it slowly but definitely begins to creep on again. Only rarely is there some real dysfunction that accounts for the inability to take it off and keep it off.

There are some thyroid gland or other hormone deficiencies that may need correction for a weight loss that never stays. This can be corrected.

When any of these conditions are not present you can be sure that the caloric intake is higher than it should be and is greater than the need of the body for normal sustenance.

Sometimes a patient loses eight or ten pounds and becomes so delighted with himself that he allows himself a temporary eating binge. Unfortunately, this is usually not a temporary one and the weight again begins to accumulate to the point that he finally gives up and says, "Oh, well, I can't win this one." Then the battle is well on its way to being lost.

It is interesting that some patients can continue to lose weight and to maintain that weight when they are under strict supervision of their doctor. As soon as they feel that they can do it themselves, the weight begins to reappear.

It is a known fact that some emotional disturbance can make diet watchers "get off the eating wagon." Eating gives to them a special source of gratification that carries them over difficult periods. Unfortunately, it takes a long time before they can again be tempted into a weight reduction schedule.

There are no short cuts or fancy fads or special fat burners that take the place of caloric counting. Many people must reconcile themselves that now and for many years they must be aware of the fact that our civilization, bulging with good food, adds pounds to the waistline.

Diet pills are only a temporary method to start weight reduction. They do not compensate for will power and an earnest desire to acquire and maintain a weight loss.

We've got to be truthful with ourselves when we count calories. Somehow the massive number of peanuts with the daily cocktail gets lost in the calorie tabulation.

A few hundred calories here and a few hundred calories there add up at the end of a day to a sizable amount—an amount of calories that should be sufficient for the total daily intake of all foods.

Learn to bank your calories yourself. If you eat too much one day, limit yourself the next. I can't wait to read this article and begin my diet tomorrow.

Diet pills are only temporary. Fire prevention is health prevention.

Dear Sir:

In times of trouble, we find out just how kind people can be, which includes our fine police department.

I would like to use this means of thanking two young boys who came to my rescue at the time of my accident on West Main Street. I neglected to get their names or to thank them properly, and would appreciate hearing from them.

Too often we neglect to mention the good things about our young people and we have so many of them.

The World Today

By JOSEPH R. COYNE (For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON AP) — While the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Cardinals battle in the baseball World Series, two other teams are battling in a more serious game over taxes and spending. The score is now firmly deadlocked.

The team manager are President Johnson and Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee. Their dugouts are 16 blocks apart—the distance from the Capitol to the White House.

The first pitch was tossed Aug. 3 when Johnson proposed a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes. The administration promised $2 billion in spending cuts from civilian programs.

The ball was pitched back to the White House last week by the Ways and Means Committee. It temporarily shelved the surcharge plan by a 20-5 vote pending an agreement with the administration on spending cuts.

But Johnson whacked the ball right back late in the week, contending it's up to Congress to make cuts in a budget he considers already free from fat.

The administration applied a squeeze play about the same time. The Defense Department froze all new contracts for construction unrelated to the Vietnam war at military bases and on Army Engineer programs—the so-called pork barrel projects of fiver and harbor development.

The rival managers, through public statements and news conferences, repeatedly spelled out their position as the week wore on but stuck to their original lineups.

Johnson said he wouldn't yield to congressional demands for big spending cut at the price of reviving the surcharge. Mill called for an overhaul in spending philosophy, not just now but for the future.

Then Saturday the White House confirmed the President had ordered Wednesday a temporary freeze on all federal spending commitments except for national defense and vital health and welfare programs, pending an end to the budget battle.

But the move was called only a holding action—not any kind of spending cut designed to answer the congressional demand that Johnson strike out some dollar signs.

That's where the ball game stood at week's start with neither side conceding anything.

But on the sidelines, some government economists who insist they know nothing about the in and outs of politics, said they felt a tax increase would eventually be approved.

"The only question is the timing and the size," one analyst said. "I expect it to be awfully close to what the President wants."

Chairman George Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, could hold the key to the deadlock which might make both teams happy.

The signals could have been called not at a baseball game but at a round of golf Mahon played with Johnson two weeks ago, the President's first golfing in some time.

Mahon plans to scrutinize anew all appropriation bills in hopes of trimming more money. It's expected to bring postponements and deferrals of spending.

If that fails to satisfy the Mills' team, the tie could be broken later this month when the temporary spending authority of most government departments expires unless their appropriation bills are adopted.

Republican, who earlier failed to tack a blanket ceiling on spending, are expected to try again at that time.

Meantime, some of the pro-administration fans expect Johnson to marshal his team quietly and win the day as he did so frequently in earlier political battle.

Cats Will Purr for a While

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Nairobi, Kenya — At the UN, which is just two blocks from my home office in New York City, the "Afro-Asian bloc" frequently looks like a monolith. For better or worse, depending on your point of view, some of the speeches delivered in behalf of the bloc conjure up a vision of guerrilla operations making Southwest Africa or Portuguese Angola or even South Africa itself a bloody shambles in the name of "freedom." But when you put a few thousand miles between yourself and the UN, the declamations made in New York take on a different and somewhat more harmless perspective.

Consider, for example, the story of the visit made by Dr. Hastings Banda, the President of Malawi, to Nairobi this past week. Eight months ago, President Banda, an old revolutionary comrade-in-arms of Kenya's President Jomo Kenyatta, was invited to deliver the opening speech at Nairobi's annual agricultural show. That was before Dr. Banda decided to break the unanimity of the "African front" against South Africa, the land of apartheid, Malawi, a landlocked country in close proximity to Portuguese Mozambique, "white" Rhodesia, and South Africa itself, had been suffering economically from its ideological compulsion to limit its dealings with neighbors that refused to bow to "one man, one vote, now." Choosing between bread and ideals, Dr. Banda decided one day that he was doing his countrymen no good by starving them in the name of freedom. So a trade deal with South Africa was approved, and the howl of anger that went up from places like Tanzania, Guinea, and the Congo was louder than the roars of all the lions in the Serengeti game preserve.

In Nairobi the left-wing Kenya People's Union began to work up plans to picket Dr. Banda on his arrival to open the agricultural show. Whereupon Jomo Kenyatta flicked his omnipresent fly whisk and announced that anybody showing disrespect to his old friend of London conspiratorial days would incur his displeasure. The People's Union got the hint. Nobody even snapped a disapproving finger in Banda's presence.

The Nairobi Show was a great success, and Dr. Banda expanded visibly in the warm equatorial sun. When told before leaving Malawi that some of the Kenya leftists had already had their mouths stopped, he had asked sarcastically, "Who are these people? When Jomo Kenyatta and I were working for our countries in London in 1945, they were just babies. Some of them were not even in primary school. Pay no attention to them. Jomo knows what he is doing and we understand each other."

Watching Dr. Banda shake hands with Daniel Arap Moi, the Kenya Vice President (and a Kelenjin tribesman), in the presence of Tom Mboya, the Minister for Planning and Development (a Luo tribesman), and the mustachioed Bruce McKenzie, the Minister of Agriculture who is a white South African, with Kenyatta the leader of the Kikuyu tribe, smiling his approval on all, one could only assume that Kenya, for the moment at least, is not on any real warpath against black African countries which, for reasons of self-preservation, have decided to get along with South Africa, Rhodesia, and the Portuguese colonies. It is entirely likely, then, that the fulminations at the UN may be safely taken for show.

This does not mean that the South Africans, the Rhodesians, and the Portuguese can dispense with their wariness. For Dr. Banda, possibly forgetting himself as he basked in the warmth of Nairobi's welcome, revealed his sly side in a speech that was designed to justify his diplomatic truce and his trade dealings with the South African and the Rhodesians. To a crowd that knows all about handling animals, he made the sage observation that there are many ways of killing a cat. You can strangle it, he said, or you can drown it. Or, if you are content to wait a bit, you can stroke it and then, when the time comes, you can turn on it and do away with it.

The South Africans and the Rhodesians will almost certainly get the point. But if Africa is in for a period of caressing cats, the "Afro-Asian bloc" at the UN is hardly an immediate menace to the peace of the African continent south of the tropics. Certainly not this year, and possibly not for a decade.

Since we have enough troubles at the moment in Southeast Asia and in the Middle East, we can be satisfied that the cats in Africa are due to purr for a while.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Eileen Farrell, whose voice has been termed "a Niagara of song," is an operatic star who enjoys herself as much in her own kitchen as she does on stage.

"I've never served a packaged meal in my house," she said with warm pride.

"I do think I'm a good cook. I bake my own bread. I suppose I'm not a good cake maker, but I'm a heck of a good pie maker."

All summer, as she has done for years, Miss Farrell spent happy quiet days cooking for her husband and two children at their Maine retreat, sometimes herself catching the fish she prepared for their dinner.

But now the nation's concert halls are calling her. Between October and next June she will give some 30 concerts and perhaps make a few television appearances.

At 47 the dramatic soprano is still in superb voice—and wants to stay that way. So she's lightening her schedule, despite the outcries and demurrers of program managers.

"You can only do what you're physically capable of," said Eileen, who likes for people to call her by her first name.

"I only want to do the roles that are to my advantage—that lie in my voice range and are good for me."

Eileen has always been one to go at her own pace. She first studied music under her mother, a church organist. She sang over the Columbia Broadcasting System radio network for seven years before essaying operatic roles.

It wasn't until she was 40 that in 1960 she made her Metropolitan Opera debut in Gluck's "Alceste." But her long and arduous preparation paid off. The audience rewarded her with an ovation and summoned her back for 22 curtain calls.

Having graduated from popular music herself, Eileen has a sympathetic feeling for today's young pop singers, some of whom she feels are ruining their voices by overstraining them as uniques.

"I'd like to teach them—to be helpful to them," she said. "Ten years from now they won't be singing because their voices will be gone. But, with help, 10 years from now they could still be singing as well as ever."

"The voice isn't simply an instrument you carry around with you. You're dealing with something that is alive and has to be taken care of."

This is her advice to any youngster aspiring to an operatic career:

"Don't try it at all unless you are willing to do the hard work involved and sacrifice many personal pleasures. Life doesn't just dump success in your lap. It may give you a marvelous break, but once you've achieved success the hardest work of all begins—to stay successful."

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A large percentage of Wall Street's savants began chanting earlier this year the opinion that the glittering glamor stocks would fade and the blue chips, with their duller but more wholesome patina, return to favor.

The experience hasn't been quite that. Although stock averages are higher now than they were a few months ago, some glamor stocks have continued to soar, and through last week looked as if the sky itself was no limit.

What is surprising even experienced investors is that some of the glamor stocks already were so high that profit-taking seemed inevitable. But they have pushed ever higher, sometimes on heavy volume.

Computer, electronics and other science-oriented stocks have been among the most popular trading vehicles, with International Business Machines, Control Data, Burroughs and Scientific Data, all scoring to record highs. Since all these companies make computers, the buying can be explained in part by examining the vast potential of the industry, now revolutionizing some businesses, creating others and releasing manpower from menial chore to concentrate on more profitable tasks.

The vigorous advances in other areas of the market—along with some sharp declines—might make it easy to be attributed to an out-trading by some of the highly active "performance" mutual funds.

There is little question that many stocks also have been little more than trading vehicles for some big, venturesome money from questionable sources.

But, after considering all reasons for the advance by glamor stocks, the most plausible and now the most popular explanation remains an old one—that stocks are a hedge against inflation.

The market is in a questionable period. Gains and losses almost match some days. On others the market averages remain neutral despite tremendous advances by individual stocks. This has created a feeling among some on Wall Street that a renewed speculative binge could occur, with the public rumpling into the market in force. When this happens, it is the signal for some pros to leap out.

Modern Witchcraft

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For the first time in Hollywood, a citizen of a Communist-bloc country is directing a major motion picture.

He is Roman Polanski, 34, trained in a five-year course at the National Film School at Lodz, Poland.

He is now directing "Rosemary's Baby," a bizarre tale of modern witchcraft produced by William Castle and starring Mia Farrow, John Cassavetes, Ruth Gordon, Sydney Blackmer, Maurice Evans and Ralph Bellamy. Polanski also wrote the script, which is based on the current best-seller by Ira Levin.

"I feel very much at ease here at Paramount," said the director. "The studio is so much like the studios in Poland, where I first worked. The reason is that the Polish studios were patterned after the ones in Russia, and they in turn were copied from the studios here. The Russians came to Hollywood in the 1920s and 1930s and went back to pattern their studios along the same lines."

Polanski is no narrow-visioned provincial. He was born in Paris to Polish parents who returned to their native land when he was 3. His father survived a concentration camp, his mother did not. After the war, Polanski tried acting and art studies, then enrolled at the film school.

Polanski's films, in school and afterward, attracted attention and awards for their daring imagery. He did some film-making in France, then returned to Poland for his feature, "Knife in the Water."

The film won the critics prize at the Venice Film Festival and an Academy nomination as best foreign-language feature of 1964. It also propelled Roman to international fame, and he has since been making films in Italy, France and England. Among them: "Repulsion," "Cul de Sac," "The Fearless Vampire Killers." His fine sense of the macabre attracted him to Castle, himself a veteran of the scare film.

Automated Detection

Crime continues to grow in the United States, and at a frightening pace in some of the more serious types, but the day may not be far off when a computer will uncover a crime, discover the identity of a suspect, follow him until he is captured, and produce the evidence to convict him.

Computers and other sophisticated electronic gear now are used in all phases of police work but not yet in the total combination described above. That day is rapidly approaching, however, as law enforcement begins a large-scale revolution in crime detection techniques.

What law officers are doing is taking advantage of some of the electronic wizardry created for the space program and military needs. Simultaneously they are employing the storage and recall capacity of computers to provide almost instantaneous identification of suspects.

Probably the most complete computer system to date is NCIC, the FBI's National Crime Information Center in Washington. Linked with seven state computer systems and metropolitan networks in the largest U. S. cities, NCIC contains files on persons who are wanted for violation of federal statutes or against whom there is a felony warrant outstanding.

But the computer is primarily a time-saving information bank. In law enforcement there are more exciting tools coming into play. One of the latest is the Voiceprint. The findings of Voiceprint, reported to be more reliable than fingerprints, have been admitted as evidence in several court cases.

Many lesser known devices help fill the law official's bag of tools in his duel with the underworld. A sniffer, which can locate human odors over great distances, is a product of the Vietnam battlefield. Neutron activation analysis, which measures the atomic half-life of elements, is used to trace evidence back to its origin.

Heat cameras, to produce silhouettes of missing objects, instruments to measure ultraviolet absorption or emission of particles left at the scene of a crime, a chemical spray which instantly stuns a person, a dart injector gun which can quiet a violent hombre with tranquilizers in seconds — these are but a sampling of the tools modern law enforcement has at its disposal. All are needed in the perpetual war on crime.

MAMA WOLFF was giving a few last-minute tips before her daughter was joined to a prosperous young publisher in holy matrimony. "When he comes home from the office," she counseled, "always sit him in the most comfortable armchair, take off his shoes, and rest his feet on a hassock."

It is entirely likely, then, that the fuminations at the UN may be safely taken for show.

This does not mean that the South Africans, the Rhodesians, and the Portuguese can dispense with their wariness. For Dr. Banda, possibly forgetting himself as he basked in the warmth of Nairobi's welcome, revealed his side in a speech that was designed to justify his diplomatic truce and his trade dealings with the South African and the Rhodesians. To a crowd that knows all about handling animals, he made the sage observation that there are many ways of killing a cat. You can strangle it, he said, or you can drown it. Or, if you are content to wait a bit, you can stroke it and then, when the time comes, you can turn on it and do away with it.

The South Africans and the Rhodesians will almost certainly get the point. But if Africa is in for a period of caressing cats, the "Afro-Asian bloc" at the UN is hardly an immediate menace to the peace of the African continent south of the tropics. Certainly not this year, and possibly not for a decade.

Since we have enough troubles at the moment in Southeast Asia and in the Middle East, we can be satisfied that the cats in Africa are due to purr for a while.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Eileen Farrell, whose voice has been termed "a Niagara of song," is an operatic star who enjoys herself as much in her own kitchen as she does on stage. "I've never served a packaged meal in my house," she said with warm pride. "I do think I'm a good cook. I bake my own bread. I suppose I'm not a good cake maker, but I'm a heck of a good pie maker."

All summer, as she has done for years, Miss Farrell spent happy quiet days cooking for her husband and two children at their Maine retreat, sometimes herself catching the fish she prepared for their dinner.

But now the nation's concert halls are calling her. Between October and next June she will give some 30 concerts and perhaps make a few television appearances.

At 47 the dramatic soprano is still in superb voice—and wants to stay that way. So she's lightening her schedule, despite the outcries and demurrers of program managers.

"You can only do what you're physically capable of," said Eileen, who likes for people to call her by her first name. "I only want to do the roles that are to my advantage—that lie in my voice range and are good for me."

Eileen has always been one to go at her own pace. She first studied music under her mother, a church organist. She sang over the Columbia Broadcasting System radio network for seven years before essaying operatic roles.

It wasn't until she was 40 that in 1960 she made her Metropolitan Opera debut in Gluck's "Alceste." But her long and arduous preparation paid off. The audience rewarded her with an ovation and summoned her back for 22 curtain calls.

Having graduated from popular music herself, Eileen has a sympathetic feeling for today's young pop singers, some of whom she feels are ruining their voices by overstraining them as unlikes.

"I'd like to teach them—to be helpful to them," she said. "Ten years from now they won't be singing because their voices will be gone. But, with help, 10 years from now they could still be singing as well as ever."

"The voice isn't simply an instrument you carry around with you. You're dealing with something that is alive and has to be taken care of."

This is her advice to any youngster aspiring to an operatic career:

"Don't try it at all unless you are willing to do the hard work involved and sacrifice many personal pleasures. Life doesn't just dump success in your lap. It may give you a marvelous break, but once you've achieved success the hardest work of all begins—to stay successful."

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A large percentage of Wall Street's savants began chanting earlier this year the opinion that the glittering glamor stocks would fade and the blue chips, with their duller but more whole-some patina, return to favor.

The experience hasn't been quite that. Although stock averages are higher now than they were a few months ago, some glamor stocks have continued to soar, and through last week looked as if the sky itself was no limit.

What is surprising even experienced investors is that some of the glamor stocks already were so high that profit-taking seemed inevitable. But they have pushed ever higher, sometimes on heavy volume.

Computer, electronics and other science-oriented stocks have been among the most popular trading vehicles, with International Business Machines, Control Data, Burroughs and Scientific Data, all scoring to record highs. Since all these companies make computers, the buying can be explained in part by examining the vast potential of the industry, now revolutionizing some businesses, creating others and releasing manpower from menial chore to concentrate on more profitable tasks.

The vigorous advances in other areas of the market—along with some sharp declines—might more easily be attributed to about trading by some of the highly active "performance" mutual funds.

There is little question that many stocks also have been little more than trading vehicles for some big, venturesome money from questionable sources.

But, after considering all reasons for the advance by glamor stocks, the most plausible and now the most popular explanation remains an old one—that stocks are a hedge against inflation.

The market is in a questionable period. Gains and losses almost match some days. On others the market averages remain neutral despite tremendous advances by individual stocks. This has created a feeling among some on Wall Street that a renewed speculative binge could occur, with the public rumpling into the market in force. When this happens, it is the signal for some pros to leap out.

Modern Witchcraft

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For the first time in Hollywood, a citizen of a Communist-bloc country is directing a major motion picture.

He is Roman Polanski, 34, trained in a five-year course at the National Film School at Lodz, Poland.

He is now directing "Rosemary's Baby," a bizarre tale of modern witchcraft produced by William Castle and starring Mia Farrow, John Cassavetes, Ruth Gordon, Sydney Blackmer, Maurice Evans and Ralph Bellamy. Polanski also wrote the script, which is based on the current best-seller by Ira Levin.

"I feel very much at ease here at Paramount," said the director. "The studio is so much like the studios in Poland, where I first worked. The reason is that the Polish studios were patterned after the ones in Russia, and they in turn were copied from the studios here. The Russians came to Hollywood in the 1920s and 1930s and went back to pattern their studios along the same lines."

Polanski is no narrow-visioned provincial. He was born in Paris to Polish parents who returned to their native land when he was 3. His father survived a concentration camp, his mother did not. After the war, Polanski tried acting and art studies, then enrolled at the film school.

Polanski's films, in school and afterward, attracted attention and awards for their daring imagery. He did some film-making in France, then returned to Poland for his feature, "Knife in the Water."

The film won the critics prize at the Venice Film Festival and an Academy nomination as best foreign-language feature of 1964. It also propelled Roman to international fame, and he has since been making films in Italy, France and England. Among them: "Repulsion," "Cul de Sac," "The Fearless Vampire Killers." His fine sense of the macabre attracted him to Castle, himself a veteran of the scare film.

Don Archer Addresses Solaqua GC

Don Archer was guest speaker for the Friday meeting of the Solaqua Garden Club in the Robtown parish house. Mrs. Lee Downs and Mrs. Paul Stout were co-hostesses.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Elzie Brooks, president. Schedules for the Pumpkin Show Flower Show were distributed to the members. Plans were formulated to make Christmas arrangements and decorations for the State School for the mentally retarded.

Mrs. Ben Walker, program chairman, introduced Don Archer, the speaker for the afternoon. Mr. Archer talked on soils and soil conservation. He stated that it took from 1,500 to 2,000 years to produce our top soil and that the region throughout Pickaway County was inundated seven times in that period. He explained how rocks are formed and showed slides of different grades of soil and told what could be done to improve poor soil.

Mr. Archer emphasized good drainage and proper cultural practices and stressed the importance of having the soil tested so the correct analysis could be ascertained for the crops to be raised.

Following the program a luncheon was served by the hostesses from a long table centered with two centerpieces of dahlias. A bowl of zinnias centered the officers' table and a vase of mums grown in the garden of Mrs. Frank Grice graced a side table.

The November meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Bernard Savy, 930 Circle Drive, with Mrs. Everett Peters assisting.

Safety First Is Elementary In Recreation

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

In the wide screen world of television dramas, danger is found in such exotic places as lagoons that harbor sea serpents and caves filled with monsters or, equally deadly, foreign spies.

But, in real life, danger lurks in ordinary settings — in your home and neighborhood, in the very places where you feel safest.

The best way to defeat danger is to be aware of its existence and knowledgeable about what to do in an emergency. Test your know-how in this all-important subject by taking the following quiz. It was prepared by experts at the National Safety Council.

1. Which of the following is not a safe bicycling rule: A. Pedestrians have the right of way; B. A bike driver may carry only one passenger at a time; C. Bicycle drivers should obey all traffic signs and signals.

2. Despite the current craze for paper dresses, a lighted cigarette will cause less damage if your dress is cotton or rayon. True or false?

3. If you are in a crowded theatre when fire breaks out: A. Walk, don't run, toward the main exit; B. Let others bypass you until you can pick out an easily accessible exit; C. If smoke is heavy, put your handkerchief over your nose and mouth and keep close to the floor.

4. You find your child drinking furniture polish. You can't reach your doctor — and it would take a half hour to get to the hospital: A. Tickle the back of his throat with a finger to make him vomit and rush him to the hospital; B. Call a hospital or Poison Control Center for advice. If you can't get an answer, make him drink one glass of milk or water and set out immediately with your child and the furniture polish for the hospital.

Radio And Bath
5. It's safe to leave a battery-operated transistor radio on the tub edge while taking a bath. True or false?

6. After piling dirt over the campfire you build downwind in a forest area free of leaves, twigs, or pine needles, it's safe to leave the fire. True or false?

7. For Halloween trick or treating, it's safer to make a child's mask of multi-colored makeup rather than let him wear a store-bought mask?

Check The Answers
1. (B) It is never advisable to carry a passenger. Passengers can obstruct vision and upset balance.

2. False. Most paper dresses are treated with fire-resistant solutions, whereas most dresses, made of more conventional fabrics are not. The National Safety Council cautions, however, that washing will dissolve the fire-resistant chemicals in paper dresses.

3. (B and C) The main exit will probably be blocked by people rushing to escape. If your escape route is temporarily blocked by others, stand or sit still until your way is clear.

HALLOWEEN is a fun occasion children look forward to. Be sure yours wear costumes designed with safety in mind.

4. B. It's always best to get immediate medical advice as treatment varies with the type of poison. In this case, a glass of milk or water is advisable to help dilute the poison.

Rules To Remember
Never induce vomiting if the victim is unconscious, in a coma, having convulsions; if the poison is an oily product (such as furniture polish) or a corrosive substance (such as ammonia or bleach).

It's important to take the contained or label with you to the hospital so contents can be checked and the patient treated accordingly.

5. True. The voltage is not high enough to cause an electric shock should it fall into the water — assuming, of course, that the radio is not plugged into house current, as some transistors can be.

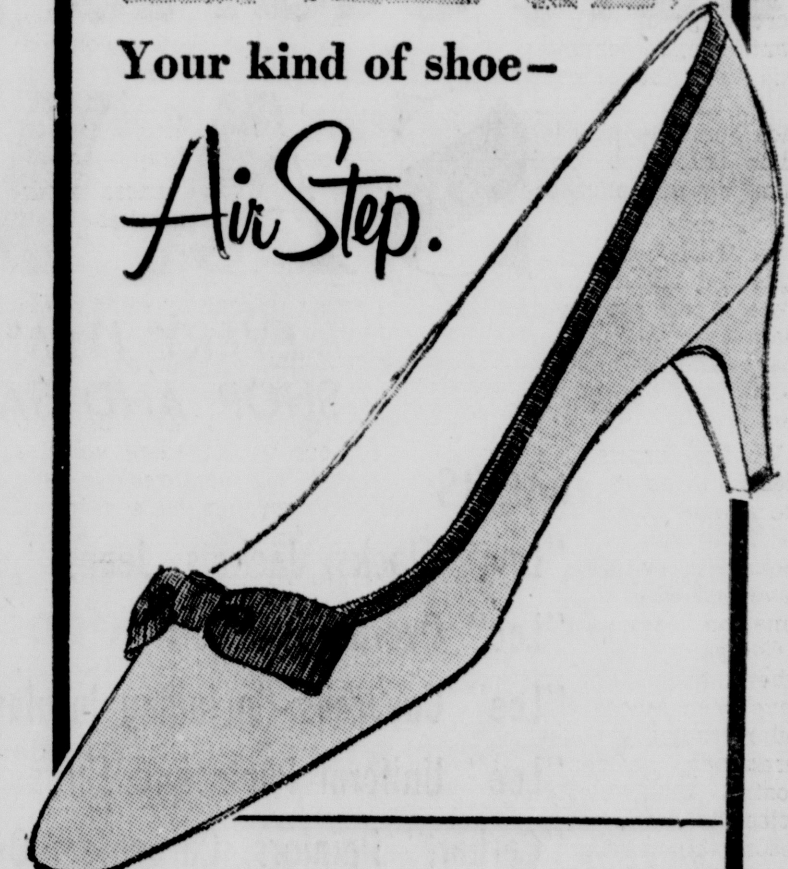

6. False. In forested areas dirt is not enough to kill a fire. It could smolder underground in humus and burst into flame nearby. Use water to completely extinguish the fire.

7. True. Two of the main dangers trick and treats face are car accidents and falls. Masks with eye holes too small or masks that slip off the nose make it difficult for kids to see the steps of an unlighted porch or oncoming cars while crossing a street.

4. B. It's always best to get immediate medical advice as treatment varies with the type of poison. In this case, a glass of milk or water is advisable to help dilute the poison.

Rules To Remember
Never induce vomiting if the victim is unconscious, in a coma, having convulsions; if the poison is an oily product (such as furniture polish) or a corrosive substance (such as ammonia or bleach).

It's important to take the container or label with you to the hospital so contents can be checked and the patient treated accordingly.

6. False. In forested areas dirt is not enough to kill a fire. It could smolder underground in humus and burst into flame nearby. Use water to completely extinguish the fire.

7. True. Two of the main dangers trick and treaters face are car accidents and falls. Masks with eye holes too small or masks that slip off the nose make it difficult for kids to see the steps of an unlighted porch or oncoming cars while crossing a street.

Chicago To Host Dem's Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats officially ratified today President Johnson's decision to forge a beachhead in the politically hostile Middle West with an August 1968 presidential nominating convention in Chicago.

The party's national committee scheduled speedy acceptance of a site committee's proposal to meet in a state with a Democratic governor and a city with a Democratic mayor—but in an area where the Republicans are in resurgence.

National Chairman John M. Bailey predicted Johnson would be renominated unanimously at the four-day extravaganza opening Aug. 25.

In a fight talk today, Bailey summoned the Democrats to back Johnson's Vietnam efforts "to prevent World War III."

The national chairman said while Johnson takes "the only position that makes sense" on Vietnam, most Republicans "are busy trying to win the 1968

Cutback in Road Funds in Prospect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state administration spokesman Monday described a possible cut in federal aid highway funds as part of an attempt by President Johnson to win Congressional approval of this proposed 10 percent income tax surtax.

John M. McElroy, the governor's executive assistant, referred to a telegram to the governor from Transportation Secretary Alan S. Boyd.

The telegram, identical to those sent to the governors of all states, mentioned the possibility of cuts in highway aid warned it may become necessary "to impose ceilings."

McElroy said the governor would withhold comment on the telegram, which asked each governor what the impact would be on his state, pending a report from Highway Director P. E. Masheter. It was generally known however, that Rhodes already has been critical of a lag in federal highway payments.

Last week, he renewed an offer to "loan" the federal government the funds so work can proceed on a new highway through Ohio's Appalachia area.

McElroy referred to Boyd's telegram as "part of the administration's pressure play to get congressional approval of the surtax."

OSU To Return To Normal Soon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University and its 37,000 students should find everything normal by midweek following settlement of a strike by the school's nonteaching employees.

"It will take until Wednesday to get all the food lines operating in all the dorms," reported William Rounds, OSU's news and information director.

The strike, which began at midnight Wednesday and ended Monday, resulted in the closing of five of eight university dormitory cafeterias.

The walkout ended when about 600 members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees voted to accept a university proposal hammered out at an all-night bargaining session.

An estimated 1,300 union members were affected by the walkout.

Among benefits won by the union were group life and major medical insurance for the employees, Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage, and the lowering of meal costs for food service workers from 30 to 15 cents. The agreement also calls for continuing studies by the university and union on wage and salary conditions.

Cuban Rebel Reported Killed in Jungle

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian army announced Monday that Ernesto Che Guevara presumably was killed or wounded Sunday in an army-guerilla clash in southeast Bolivia.

"A violent combat with a Red group occurred yesterday four miles northwest of Higuera," said an army communique.

The rebels put up desperate resistance and suffered five casualties among them being presumably Ernesto Che Guevara.

Guevara, an Argentine who turned revolutionary after receiving a medical degree, fought with Fidel Castro in his revolution in Cuba's Sierra Maestra. After Castro's victory he played an active role in the Cuban Communist government but dropped out of sight in 1965.

He had been variously reported in Red China, North Vietnam and the Congo as well as several Latin American countries.

Dear Abby: Neighbor Wants To Head Off Trouble

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor, who has three daughters, 15, 13 and 10, has me terribly upset. They seem to be a nice family, but the mother went to work recently and the girls are home alone most of the time. There are all kinds of boys flocking at this house, inside and out, running, hollering and wrestling with the girls.

The oldest is the quiet type. She stays in the house most of the time with her boy friend. I hope I am wrong, but it sure doesn't look very nice, and the neighbors are talking. Everyone seems to know but the parents. They must not even have any suspicions because they're not the type to put up with such goings-on.

Should I call them? Or should I mind my own business?

WORRIED NEIGHBOR

DEAR ABBY: You and the other neighbors could be wrong in your suspicions of the "goings on," but do unto others. If they were your daughters, wouldn't you want to be told in time to head off trouble?

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with "PAST 70," who feels that every announcement or invitation is a bid for a gift. And it's too bad that many are not sent because they feel as "Past 70" feels. Sometimes they are sent just to let friends know what

Hoffa's New Trial Bid Turned Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court turned down Monday a bid for a new trial by James R. Hoffa, imprisoned president of the Teamsters Union.

The bid was based on two claims: (1) that a "spy" for the Justice Department and the FBI was present when Hoffa's attorneys planned strategy for his 1964 jury tampering trial; (2) that important evidence was suppressed at his trial with the "connivance or at least with the acquiescence of United States marshals."

Both claims were rejected by the U.S. Circuit Court in Cincinnati last May when it upheld a ruling by the U.S. District Court at Chattanooga denying Hoffa a new trial. The Supreme Court made no comment in declining to hear Hoffa's appeal from the Circuit Court decision.

Hoffa was convicted in Chattanooga in March 1964 on charges of tampering with jurors at his Taft-Hartley conspiracy trial in Nashville in 1962.

High Court Won't Review School Integration Suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to review a historic decision by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans calling for top-to-bottom integration of all public school systems in six southern states.

The high court gave no explanation in announcing that it would not hear appeal from the March 29 decision filed in behalf of six Louisiana and three Alabama school boards. This means the decision is left pending—and serves to give it added weight as a precedent for courts elsewhere.

Justice Thurgood Marshall did not participate in the case. Rejection of the appeals was urged by the Justice Department and by attorneys for Negro pupils whose litigation led to the Circuit Court ruling.

In its decision the circuit court required integration of classrooms, faculties, facilities and activities in all public school systems in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas from kindergarten up.

Displaying his strength, Manitoba's Rodger Carriere totes 725 pounds of flour to the amazement of onlookers.

"King Trapper" Lugs Flour In North Manitoba Festival

By STEVE LIBBY
There are those of us who sit behind a desk all day long, our only exercise coming to us on the occasional week-end on the golf course.

Not so with Rodger Carriere of Cranberry Portage, Manitoba. This six-foot, 200-pound Canadian gets his exercise seven days a week — and as a reward he was named "King Trapper" for the ninth time, at the Northern Manitoba Trappers Festival, held annually at The Pas.

To retain his title, Carriere packed 725 pounds of flour on his back over the prescribed course, using a tumpline. This broad strap, stretching around the contestant's forehead, helps balance the load and gives his back additional strength from the neck muscles.

However, that wasn't the only competition won by the rugged Carriere. He also came in first in trap setting, jigging, moose calling and muskrat-skinning.

At 36 years of age, Carriere is reputedly the toughest man in northern Manitoba. He is a member of the crack Manitoba canoe team which will, this summer, paddle some 3,500 miles across Canada as part of the country's centennial celebrations.

The team will appear in mid-summer at Montreal's Expo 67 — a special thrill for the man who won this year's three-day Mardi Gras of the North, held annually at The Pas.

The Pas, a tiny town in west central Manitoba close to the border of Saskatchewan, is near Atikameg Provincial Park. It is here, more than 300 miles northwest of the capital city area of Winnipeg, that the annual Mardi Gras celebrations are held.

As part of the festivities — including the list of events won by Rodger Carriere — are competitions in snow shoeing and bannock-baking. One of the major events is a gruelling, 150-mile World Championship Dog Sled Race, one of the most challenging races of its kind in the world.

King trapper Rodger Carriere lives even more deeply into the northwest of Manitoba, 50 miles from The Pas.

Poodle Owner Says She's Learned Lesson

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jody Curtis says next time she'll buy a dog license.

Mrs. Curtis was arrested last week and put in jail for half a day for failing to get a license for Peaches, a poodle of undetermined ancestry.

"I wasn't about to pay it," the 50-year-old mother said after a friend bailed her out. "I didn't even have the dog anymore."

Mrs. Curtis said she gave Peaches away three months ago — after the city sent her the first warning about the license. But the warnings kept coming, and Mrs. Curtis kept ignoring them until she was arrested.

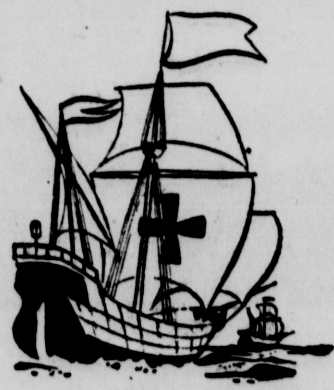

Mrs. Curtis has another dog now, Missy. Peaches' daughter. She says she'll buy Missy a license when the dog reaches the legal licensing age.

Deerfield Beach has 12 traffic lights.

Drug Party Murders Net Two Arrests

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men are accused in the LSD party murders of Linda Fitzpatrick, 18, and her long-haired boyfriend, James "Groovy" Hutchinson, 21, a well-known figure in the world of East Village hippies.

There were hints of more arrests to come Monday, but Asst. Dist. Atty. Daniel Harris would comment only that the investigation was continuing.

Police said it was a wild interracial LSD party that climaxed in the bludgeoned slayings of the two young people. The girl was reportedly raped several times but police refused to confirm the assaults.

Detectives said the questioning of several persons present at the party led to the arrest of Donald Ramsey, 26, a bearded Negro laborer who was said to practice the African tribal faith Yoruba. He was held without bail on a homicide charge.

Later police also placed a homicide charge against Thomas Dennis, 25, an unemployed Negro vagrant known to them as "the president of Tompkins Square Park." The park is a favorite gathering place for hippies.

The garbage-strewn basement where the slayings took place is in a tenement located just around the corner from the park.

"The couple were looking for LSD, and they were enticed into the basement, where they were given the drug," said a high police officer. Both Ramsey and Dennis reportedly took part in the hallucinatory revels.

In the aftermath of the party, a white girl guest charged she was attacked and robbed by the assistant superintendent of the building. He is Freddie Wright, 51, a Negro, who reported the discovery of the bodies.

He was held in $50,000 bond on rape and robbery charges in criminal court.

The nude bodies of the two young people were discovered in the basement of the building on Avenue B early Sunday morning. A brick wrapped in a pair of men's trousers lay nearby.

Linda Rae Fitzpatrick was the brown-haired daughter of Irving Fitzpatrick, a spice and tea importer and president of Knickerbocker Mills in Totowa, N.J. The family lives in a $150,000 home on a four-acre estate in Greenwich, Conn.

Hutchinson, her murdered escort, was a tattooed drifter from Rhode Island with a police record of several arrests. He was a familiar figure in the East Village and helped newcomers to the hippie scene find their way around.

Historical Society Meets with Clubs

Trustees, officers and committee members of the Pickaway County Historical Society met recently with several representatives from area women's clubs.

Rex Haecker, president of the Historical Society, discussed the progress of the restoration of the Clarke-May Home, emphasizing a meeting room is being added to the rear of the building.

The room will be available to community organizations.

Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiation Now! Va group seeking peace in Vietnam—says it has cabled the Viet Cong and the Hanoi regime to respond favorably to what it hopes will be an American peace initiative.

Representatives of the group are in Washington to present to President Johnson and Congress a petition it says is signed by 500,000 Americans who want a quick end to the fighting.

The group asks the United States to make the first peace move: an unconditional halt to the bombing of North Vietnam and an agreement to include the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, as an official party to negotiations.

It also asks the United States to "name a time and place where our negotiators will appear and await negotiators of all concerned parties." It asked Hanoi and the NLF to agree to negotiations and "join us at the conference table."

The Rt. Rev. Leland Stark, Episcopal bishop of Newark, N.J., appeared for the group at a press conference and said the cable to Hanoi makes it clear "that Americans want a response from them that makes a negotiated settlement possible."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The eighth American astronaut to die accidentally in the last three years was buried Monday.

Six gray horses pulled a caisson bearing the body of Maj. C. C. Williams to the gravesite in Arlington National Cemetery, just a few feet from the graves of two astronauts killed last January when fire swept their spacecraft at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Several hundred mourners, including Williams' parents, other astronauts, members of Congress and officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration stood silently as the young widow accepted a flag from a Marine and placed a crucifix on the coffin.

Williams was killed last Thursday in the crash of his T38 jet trainer near Tallahassee, Fla.

Three astronauts were killed in the spacecraft fire. Three died in plane crashes. One was killed in a traffic accident.

He Wins Silver Star — After 49 Years

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — The army caught up with William F. Martens 49 years late—and gave him the Silver Star.

Martens now 80, was a doughboy in World War I. He fought in the battle of the Argonne, and that's where the Army says he won his medal for gallantry.

Martens said Monday he moved around a lot after 1918 and "The Army probably couldn't find me."

Last June Martens learned during a reunion of his old outfit that the Army was looking for him. Now he has his reward at last.

Displaying his strength, Manitoba's Rodger Carriere totes 725 pounds of flour to the amazement of onlookers.

"King Trapper" Lugs Flour In North Manitoba Festival

By STEVE LIBBY

There are those of us who sit behind a desk all day long, our only exercise coming to us on the occasional week-end on the golf course.

Not so with Rodger Carriere of Cranberry Portage, Manitoba. This six-foot, 200-pound Canadian gets his exercise seven days a week — and as a reward he was named "King Trapper" for the ninth time, at the Northern Manitoba Trappers Festival, held annually at The Pas.

To retain his title, Carriere packed 725 pounds of flour on his back over the prescribed course, using a tumpline. This broad strap, stretching around the contestant's forehead, helps balance the load and gives his back additional strength from the neck muscles.

However, that wasn't the only competition won by the rugged Carriere. He also came in first in trap setting, jiggling, moose calling and muskrat-skinning.

At 36 years of age, Carriere is reputedly the toughest man in northern Manitoba. He is a member of the crack Manitoba canoe team which will, this summer, paddle some 3,500 miles across Canada as part of the country's centennial celebrations.

The team will appear in mid-summer at Montreal's Expo 67 — a special thrill for the man who won this year's three-day Mardi Gras of the North, held annually at The Pas.

The Pas, a tiny town in west central Manitoba close to the border of Saskatchewan, is near Atikameg Provincial Park. It is here, more than 300 miles northwest of the capital city area of Winnipeg, that the annual Mardi Gras celebrations are held.

As part of the festivities — including the list of events won by Rodger Carriere — are competitions in snow shoeing and bannock-baking. One of the major events is a gruelling, 150-mile World Championship Dog Sled Race, one of the most challenging races of its kind in the world.

King trapper Rodger Carriere lives even more deeply into the northwest of Manitoba, 50 miles from The Pas.

Poodle Owner Says She's Learned Lesson

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jody Curtis says next time she'll buy a dog license.

Mrs. Curtis was arrested last week and put in jail for half a year for failing to get a license for Peaches, a pooch of undetermined ancestry.

"I wasn't about to pay it," the 20-year-old mother said after a friend bailed her out. "I didn't even have the dog anymore."

Mrs. Curtis said she gave Peaches away three months ago — after the city sent her the first warning about the license. But the warnings kept coming, and Mrs. Curtis kept ignoring them until she was arrested.

Mrs. Curtis has another dog now, Missy. Peaches' daughter. She says she'll buy Missy a license when the dog reaches the legal licensing age.

Drug Party Murders Net Two Arrests

NEW YORK (AP)—Two men are accused in the LSD party murders of Linda Fitzpatrick, 18, and her long-haired boyfriend, James "Groovy" Hutchinson, 21, a well-known figure in the world of East Village hippies.

There were hints of more arrests to come Monday, but Asst. Dist. Atty. Daniel Harris would comment only that the investigation was continuing.

Police said it was a wild interracial LSD party that climaxed in the bludgeoning slayings of the two young people. The girl was reportedly raped several times but police refused to confirm the assaults.

Detectives said the questioning of several persons present at the party led to the arrest of Donald Ramsey, 26, a bearded Negro laborer who was said to practice the African tribal faith Yoruba. He was held without bail on a homicide charge.

Later police also placed a homicide charge against Thomas Dennis, 25, an unemployed Negro vagrant known to them as "the president of Tompkins Square Park." The park is a favorite gathering place for hippies.

The garbage-strewn basement where the slayings took place is in a tenement located just around the corner from the park.

"The couple were looking for LSD, and they were enticed into the basement, where they were given the drug," said a high police officer. Both Ramsey and Dennis reportedly took part in the hallucinatory revels.

In the aftermath of the party, a white girl guest charged she was attacked and robbed by the assistant superintendent of the building. He is Freddie Wright, 31, a Negro, who reported the discovery of the bodies.

He was held in $50,000 bond on rape and robbery charges in criminal court.

The nude bodies of the two young people were discovered in the basement of the building on Avenue B early Sunday morning. A brick wrapped in a pair of men's trousers lay nearby.

Linda Rae Fitzpatrick was the brown-haired daughter of Irving Fitzpatrick, a spice and tea importer and president of Knickerbocker Mills in Totowa, N.J. The family lives in a $150,000 home on a four-acre estate in Greenwich, Conn.

Hutchinson, her murdered escort, was a tattooed drifter from Rhode Island with a police record of several arrests. He was a familiar figure in the East Village and helped newcomers to the hippie scene find their way around.

Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiation Now! Va group seeking peace in Vietnam—says it has cabled the Viet Cong and the Hanoi regime to respond favorably to what it hopes will be an American peace initiative.

Representatives of the group are in Washington to present to President Johnson and Congress a petition it says is signed by 500,000 Americans who want a quick end to the fighting.

The group asks the United States to make the first peace move: an unconditional halt to the bombing of North Vietnam and an agreement to include the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, as an official party to negotiations.

It also asks the United States to "name a time and place where our negotiators will appear and await negotiators of all concerned parties." It asked Hanoi and the NLF to agree to negotiations and "join us at the conference table."

The Rt. Rev. Leland Stark, Episcopal bishop of Newark, N.J., appeared for the group at a press conference and said the cable to Hanoi makes it clear "that Americans want a response from them that makes a negotiated settlement possible."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The eighth American astronaut to die accidentally in the last three years was buried Monday.

Six gray horses pulled a caisson bearing the body of Maj. C. C. Williams to the gravesite in Arlington National Cemetery, just a few feet from the graves of two astronauts killed last January when fire swept their spacecraft at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Several hundred mourners, including Williams's parents, other astronauts, members of Congress and officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration stood silently as the young widow accepted a flag from a Marine and placed a crucifix on the coffin.

Williams was killed last Thursday in the crash of his T38 jet trainer near Tallahassee, Fla.

Three astronauts were killed in the spacecraft fire. Three died in plane crashes. One was killed in a traffic accident.

A contemporary print depicts Pocahontas, the daughter of an Indian chief, as the wife of John Rolfe, the Englishman.

Pocahontas Story Retold 350 Years After Her Death

BY RAYMOND WILCOVE

Williamsburg, Va. — Not long ago, beside the entrance to the English village of Heacham, a descendant of John Rolfe erected a carved wood painting of Pocahontas and thus revived memories of one of America's most romantic love stories.

This year marks the 350th anniversary of the death of the Indian princess who, so the unauthenticated story goes, saved the life of Capt. John Smith, the leader of the early English colonists.

A few miles from Williamsburg, where Colonial America lives again, there is a statue to Pocahontas in what was once Jamestown, the first permanent English settlement in America. A bronze monument also stands to the intrepid Englishman whom she befriended. Little remains of the original settlement, which served as Virginia's first capital, and it is now an historical park.

However, unlike the settlement, the story of the Indian princess and the English captain has survived the test of time. According to Captain Smith, he was captured by the rulers of Chief Powhatan, ruler of 30 tribes, while on an exploration trip. While defending himself, Smith killed an Indian and was condemned to death.

The story is that his head was placed upon a pile of rocks as two Indian warriors poised their tomahawks and prepared to crush his skull. At this crucial moment, the young daughter of Powhatan threw herself upon him and "hazarded the beating out of her own brains."

Accounts have variously placed the age of Pocahontas at this time at 12 to 16. The princess was enamored with the stalwart Englishman who, during his short period of captivity, had entranced her with stories of his own world. But, alas, her romance with Captain Smith was not to flower. On one of his periodic trips to England, she was falsely told that he was dead.

Consequently, when she was captured by the English colonists and held hostage at Jamestown for the safety of the settlers and to obtain food from the Indians, she accepted an offer of marriage from a young Englishman, John Rolfe, who had taught her Christianity. The two were married in 1613 and a few years later went to England. There the Indian princess, now known as Lady Rebecca, was the sensation of London. She was presented to the king and queen and moved in the highest social circles.

Pocahontas, however, was lonesome for her native land and set sail in 1617 with her husband for Virginia, but died of smallpox or consumption (the stories vary) before the vessel got very far. She is buried in St. Georges Church in Gravesend, a London suburb. Her son, Tom Rolfe, emigrated to Virginia when 25 and had a daughter there.

Several well-known American families — including the Randolphs, the Bollings, the Guys, the Robertsons, and the Elbridges, trace their lineage to her. One of them, Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt, became the First Lady of the Land when she married another Virginian, President Woodrow Wilson, in 1915.

TV Cameras Film Murder Trial Live

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Virginia Dean Thomson, 48, wept Monday when the all-male jury acquitted her of murder. As friends and her children rushed to hug her, quiet movie cameras took it all in for television replay.

Mrs. Thomson, defense lawyer, Percy Foreman, prosecutors, judge, jury—all had signed releases permitting the Columbia Broadcasting System to film the trial for a show about Foreman's work.

"It's so wonderful that it is all over, but I am sorry my husband is dead," Mrs. Thomson said.

A year ago, she testified, she shot and killed lawyer-accountant Arthur Francis Thomson, 49, because of his cruelty to her.

Jury Foreman G.F. Dickinson said, "We did our best to see that the personalities of the lawyers did not influence us. Maybe we didn't succeed, but we tried."

Foreman was enthusiastic about the presence of the CBS crew in the court of Dist. Judge Wendell A. Odum.

"The Constitution guarantees every defendant a public trial, but with so many diversions today, the only way the public can participate in a trial is through media like newspapers or television," Foreman said as selection of jurors began.

He forecast that one day quiet cameras would record all trials for review by appeals courts.

CBS was filming the Houston trial for use in programs about Foreman and other defense lawyers, such as F. Lee Bailey, Louis Nizer, Edward Bennett Williams and Melvin Belli.

The network agreed not to show the film if Mrs. Thomson should be convicted, using it only after her appeals were exhausted.

Joseph Wershba, a CBS producer on hand for the trial, said the network hoped to prove that television would not interfere with fair trial.

His Tastes Expensive; Wife Gets Divorce

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Seeking a divorce, Mrs. Earlene Napier told Judge John L. Niblack her husband bought a $352 toupee two weeks after they were remarried, then demanded she pay for it.

She and John Naer were married in 1960, divorced in September, 1966, and remarried last Jan. 7. Mrs. Napier said the income from her restaurant job wasn't enough to pay for the toupee and support the couple's child.

Niblack granted the divorce.

Shoulder Seatbelts To Become Standard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, deciding that injuries from over-the-shoulder seatbelts are rare, will stand by its requirement that the chest belts be in all new cars built after Dec. 31.

Federal Highway Administrator Lowell K. Bridwell announced Monday the agency's second thoughts about the standard have been resolved. He pronounced use of chest and lap belts together "the best single means of protection available" from injury in car accidents.

The standard will require chest belts for the driver and the right front passenger but not for rear-seat passengers.

Bridwell had announced Aug. 18 the standard was being reviewed.

One concern of federal officials was an indication that in collisions, the chest belts might cause neck injuries.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Michael E. Mayer, a paunchy 38-year-old freight company employee who had his fling with $16,000 worth of embezzled money, wanted a speedy handling of his case.

Mayer got his wish Monday, being sentenced to two concurrent two-year prison terms for embezzling $16,000 from the W. R. Zanes Co., his employer. Mayer's firm discovered Oct. 2 that the money had been drawn in checks payable to Mayer.

Mayer, who pleaded guilty, said a cross-country swing took him to Las Vegas, New York, New Orleans and Shreveport, La. He put down $3,000 in cash for a new car, pocketed some spending money and drew a cashier's check for $8,000.

Bowling Green Stands To Lose Major Plant

(AP)—Weekend rejection of a three-year package plan by about 510 striking Daybrook-Ottawa Corp., employees may cause Bowling Green to lose its largest industrial plant.

Roger Elrod, industrial manager at the strikebound plant, said a contract with the Kaiser Jeep Corp., of Toledo, Daybrook's largest customer, is due to expire in a few days and may not be renewed if the 39-day-old strike by UAW-CIO Local 990 is not ended shortly. This may force a closing of the plant, he said.

Teacher Loses Job For Smoking Marijuana

NICASIO, Calif. (AP) — Residents of this tiny Marin County village Monday night fired their veteran primary school teacher-principal because she had said openly she had smoked marijuana for 18 years.

Mrs. Garnet E. Brennan, 58, had broken the law, they argued.

She said she would appeal. The three-man school board voted unanimously to confirm dismissal on the basis that California law requires that all students be taught the basic principles of good citizenship, and that primary among the attributes of good citizenship is respect for the law. If one feels a law is improper, adequate means exist to amend it.

Board Chairman Wilfred LaFranchi said Mrs. Brennan, a veteran of 30 years teaching—five in this tiny school of 47 pupils—had been dismissed for "immoral conduct." He said the phrase was unfortunate but that the California education code required it.

"For a teacher to repeatedly violate a law of the state constitutes immoral conduct, in our view," he said.

A contemporary print depicts Pocahontas, the daughter of an Indian chief, as the wife of John Rolfe, the Englishman.

Pocahontas Story Retold 350 Years After Her Death

BY RAYMOND WILCOVE

Williamsburg, Va. — Not long ago, beside the entrance to the English village of Heam, a descendant of John Rolfe erected a carved wood painting of Pocahontas and thus revived memories of one of America's most romantic love stories.

This year marks the 350th anniversary of the death of the Indian princess who, so the unauthenticated story goes, saved the life of Capt. John Smith, the leader of the early English colonists.

A few miles from Williamsburg, where Colonial America lives again, there is a statue to Pocahontas in what was once Jamestown, the first permanent English settlement in America. A bronze monument also stands to the intrepid Englishman whom she befriended. Little remains of the original settlement, which served as Virginia's first capital, and it is now an historical park.

However, unlike the settlement, the story of the Indian princess and the English captain has survived the test of time. According to Captain Smith, he was captured by the Indians of Chief Powhatan, ruler of 30 tribes, while on an exploration trip. While defending himself, Smith killed an Indian and was condemned to death.

The story is that his head was placed upon a pile of rocks as two Indian warriors poised their tomahawks and prepared to crush his skull. At this crucial moment, the young daughter of Powhatan threw herself upon him and "hazarded the beating out of her own brains."

Accounts have variously placed the age of Pocahontas at this time at 12 to 16. The princess was enamored with the stalwart Englishman who, during his short period of captivity, had entranced her with stories of his own world. But, alas, her romance with Captain Smith was not to flower. On one of his periodic trips to England, she was falsely told that he was dead.

Consequently, when she was captured by the English colonists and held hostage at Jamestown for the safety of the settlers and to obtain food from the Indians, she accepted an offer of marriage from a young Englishman, John Rolfe, who had taught her Christianity.

The two were married in 1613 and a few years later went to England. There the Indian princess, now known as Lady Rebecca, was the sensation of London. She was presented to the king and queen and moved in the highest social circles.

Pocahontas, however, was lonesome for her native land and set sail in 1617 with her husband for Virginia, but died of smallpox or consumption (the stories vary) before the vessel got very far. She is buried in St. George's Church in Gravesend, a London suburb. Her son, Tom Rolfe, emigrated to Virginia when 25 and had a daughter there.

Several well-known American families — including the Randolphs, the Bollings, the Guys, the Robertsons, and the Elbridges, trace their lineage to her. One of them, Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt, became the First Lady of the Land when she married another Virginian, President Woodrow Wilson, in 1915.

TV Cameras Film Murder Trial Live

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Virginia Dean Thomson, 48, wept Monday when the all-male jury acquitted her of murder. As friends and her children rushed to hug her, quiet movie cameras took it all in for television replay.

Mrs. Thomson, defense lawyer, Percy Foreman, prosecutors, judge, jury—all had signed releases permitting the Columbia Broadcasting System to film the trial for a show about Foreman's work.

"It's so wonderful that it is all over, but I am sorry my husband is dead," Mrs. Thomson said.

A year ago, she testified, she shot and killed lawyer-accountant Arthur Francis Thomson, 49, because of his cruelty to her.

Jury Foreman G.F. Dickinson said, "We did our best to see that the personalities of the lawyers did not influence us. Maybe we didn't succeed, but we tried."

Foreman was enthusiastic about the presence of the CBS crew in the court of Dist. Judge Wendell A. Odom.

"The Constitution guarantees every defendant a public trial, but with so many diversions today, the only way the public can participate in a trial is through media like newspapers or television," Foreman said as selection of jurors began.

He forecast that one day quiet cameras would record all trials for review by appeals courts.

CBS was filming the Houston trial for use in programs about Foreman and other defense lawyers, such as F. Lee Bailey, Louis Nizer, Edward Bennett Williams and Melvin Belli.

The network agreed not to show the film if Mrs. Thomson should be convicted, using it only after her appeals were exhausted.

Joseph Wershba, a CBS producer on hand for the trial, said the network hoped to prove that television would not interfere with fair trial.

His Tastes Expensive; Wife Gets Divorce

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Seeking a divorce, Mrs. Earlene Napier told Judge John L. Niblack her husband bought a $352 toupee two weeks after they were remarried, then demanded she pay for it.

She and John Naer were married in 1960, divorced in September, 1966, and remarried last Jan. 7. Mrs. Napier said the income from her restaurant job wasn't enough to pay for the toupee and support the couple's child.

Niblack granted the divorce.

Shoulder Seatbelts To Become Standard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, deciding that injuries from over-the-shoulder seatbelts are rare, will stand by its requirement that the chest belts be in all new cars built after Dec. 31.

Federal Highway Administrator Lowell K. Bridwell announced Monday the agency's second thoughts about the standard have been resolved. He pronounced use of chest and lap belts together "the best single means of protection available" from injury in car accidents.

The standard will require chest belts for the driver and the right front passenger but not for rear-seat passengers.

Bridwell had announced Aug. 18 the standard was being reviewed.

One concern of federal officials was an indication that in collisions, the chest belts might cause neck injuries.

Drug User Arrested After Radio Interview

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The voice on the radio program said, "I was righteously stoned" on marijuana—and long-haired Gridley Lorimer Wright was met by police officers at 3 a.m. May 18 as he left the station.

The recording of the all-night "talk program" was played Monday at Wright's trial. The former country deputy probation officer is charged with possessing marijuana.

"I had been smoking it all night," the recorded voice said, "and I was righteously stoned."

The police were notified of the statement by listeners and Wright was arrested after the show on which he was a guest. Officers said they found marijuana in his car.

Wright is fighting the case on the grounds antimarijuana laws violates his constitutional right to religious freedom.

Embezzler Gets Wish — Justice Is Swift

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Michael E. Mayer, a paunchy 38-year-old freight company employee who had his fling with $16,000 worth of embezzled money, wanted a speedy handling of his case.

Mayer got his wish Monday, being sentenced to two concurrent two-year prison terms for embezzling $16,000 from the W. R. Zanes Co., his employer. Mayer's firm discovered Oct. 2 that the money had been drawn in checks payable to Mayer.

Mayer, who pleaded guilty, said a cross-country swing took him to Las Vegas, New York, New Orleans and Shreveport, La. He put down $3,000 in cash for a new car, pocketed some spending money and drew a cashier's check for $8,000.

Bowling Green Stands To Lose Major Plant

(AP) — Weekend rejection of a three-year package plan by about 510 striking Daybrook-Ottawa Corp. employees may cause Bowling Green to lose its largest industrial plant.

Roger Elrod, industrial manager at the strikebound plant, said a contract with the Kaiser Jeep Corp., of Toledo, Daybrook's largest customer, is due to expire in a few days and may not be renewed if the 39-day-old strike by UAW-CIO Local 990 is not ended shortly. This may force a closing of the plant, he said.

Daybrook produces hydraulic lifts for trucks.

Teacher Loses Job For Smoking Marijuana

NICASIO, Calif. (AP) — Residents of this tiny Marin County village Monday night fired their veteran primary school teacher-principal because she had said openly she had smoked marijuana for 18 years.

Mrs. Garnet E. Brennan, 58, had broken the law, they argued.

She said she would appeal. The three-man school board voted unanimously to confirm dismissal on the basis that California law requires that all students be taught the basic principles of good citizenship, and that primary among the attributes of good citizenship is respect for the law. If one feels a law is improper, adequate means exist to amend it.

Board Chairman Wilfred LaFranchi said Mrs. Brennan, a veteran of 30 years teaching—five in this tiny school of 47 pupils—had been dismissed for "immoral conduct." He said the phrase was unfortunate but that the California education code required it.

"For a teacher to repeatedly violate a law of the state constitutes immoral conduct, in our view," he said.

Player Has Surgery

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves' catcher Joe Torre has undergone surgery for an injury to his right ankle and will wear a cast for about six weeks.

The Braves announced Monday that a small fragment of bone was removed and ligaments reattached.

Pros Agree Golf Courses Need Change

LONDON (AP) — Arnold Palmer and Gary Player came to town today and while they might disagree on which of their sweaters, shoes and clubs are better, these two giants of the game agreed on one thing: Golf courses have to undergo a change.

Player and Palmer converged on London to compete in the fourth renewal of the Piccadilly World Match Play championship.

Straight from Tokyo and Italy and France, the two champions meet head on at Wentworth starting Thursday in the eight-man invitation tournament which has become one of the great title play competitions left to those who believe in match as against medal play.

Said Player: "The architects, especially in the United States, have to stop building courses so long. It's not necessary. People play golf to enjoy it and they should be allowed to enjoy it. It's all right for me no matter how long they are but we are talking about those who play the game for pleasure."

Said Palmer: "Golf courses are arranged for the professional to beat them. He should beat par. The scratch player should equal it. That's the way I see it."

Meanwhile Gay Brewer, reigning U.S. Masters champion from Dallas, pocketed a first prize of $55,000 in the Alean Golfer of the Year Tournament at St. Andrews. He beat Billy Casper, former U. S. Open champion, by four strokes in an 18-hole playoff and then caught a plane to try and win the Match Play championship at Wentworth.

Casper, who won $15,000, also left Scotland to play at Wentworth.

"People misunderstand about the NBA," said the former San Francisco Warrior now under contract to the Oakland Oaks. "Only a few young players make the NBA each year. There are few opportunities, and it's just tough to make a team or even improve."

Barry said players coming out of college now have better chances for making a name and money in the new league.

While Barry was in Indianapolis, the Indiana Pacers announced they would be hosts for the first ABA All-Star Game in January. The tentative date is Jan. 9, either in the State Fairgrounds Coliseum (10,000 capacity) where the Pacers play their home games or Butler University's Hinkle Fieldhouse (14,000).

After Barry switched to the Oaks, San Francisco owner Franklin Mieuli gained a court injunction barring the superstar from playing in the ABA this season. Barry is sitting out the season rather than play with the Warriors.

Explaining his move, Barry said, "I love the game, but it's business to me. The basic reason I changed was financial—that and my father-in-law (former Miami Coach Bruce Hale, who now is directing the Oaks)."

Mets Consider Hodges As Estrum's Successor
BOSTON (AP) — The New York Mets, shopping for a new manager, have received the Washington Senators' permission to negotiate with Gil Hodges, but more than that the principals aren't saying.

Hodges, former Brooklyn Dodger star who managed the Senators to an encouraging tie for sixth place in the American League this season, still has a year left on his Washington contract, but Mets' president Bing Devine is expected to try to lure him back to New York.

Hodges has been prominently mentioned as a likely candidate to replace Wes Westrum, who resigned shortly before the season ended, but so far the Mets have denied they have talked with him.

Now that the Senators have given the go-ahead, Devine will probably make Hodges an offer soon, but Hodges was unavailable for comment.

Lonborg Wants Another Crack at St. Louis; Terms 3-1 Red Sox Victory A 'Mind Tonic'

BOSTON (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals still have to drive 27 nails.

Manager Dick Williams of Boston said it before Monday's game, and the statement was still pertinent after the Red Sox defeated the Cardinals 3-1 in St. Louis and sliced their World Series deficit to three games to two.

The Cardinals got the 27 outs they needed, but in between some of them the Red Sox scored three runs and that was all Jim Lonborg needed.

Lonborg, the prime candidate for the American League's Cy Young Award, missed matching his second-game shutout when Roger Maris homered with two out in the ninth inning.

He still wound up with a three-hitter and a record for allowing the fewest hits in two consecutive Series games. He stopped the Cardinals on one hit last Thursday.

Now it's up to Gary Waslewski, a 26-year-old right-hander, to keep the Series alive for Lonborg to come back in the seventh game. When the teams resume here Wednesday, Waslewski will be opposed by Dick Hughes, the loser in Lonborg's first victory.

Any postponements because of rain might entice Williams to switch to Lonborg for the sixth game, but right now the man is Waslewski, who pitched three perfect innings of relief in the third game. He was 2-2 during the season.

Lonborg, who previously this year has pitched with just two days rest twice, isn't afraid of the seventh game, in which he would tangle with Bob Gibson, St. Louis' two-game winner.

"I can go in the seventh game," he said while treating his precious right arm with ice. "The body needs the rest, but the mind can come back. The mind can do wonderful things. It really can get you up."

"I think the fact that they beat us two in a row put some doubts in our mind, but his game reaffirms our belief that we can beat them."

So far, however, only Lonborg has been able to beat them. The 24-year-old right-hander never was in trouble Monday, and after the Red Sox picked up a pair of runs in the top of the ninth even Maris' homer didn't bother him.

The only other hits he allowed were singles by Dal Maxvill in the third and Maris in the fourth.

"I thought when I came into the game I was psychologically ready, and I thought I could beat them," said the Red Sox ace who pitched for the third time in nine days and the fifth time in 16 days.

"I didn't feel any pressure. As soon as I walk across the white line, it's just another game."

Eyes Hockey Franchise

ATLANTA (AP) — In two years Atlanta has become a major sports city with the coming of major league baseball, professional football and professional soccer. Now, the city is casting covetous eyes on a franchise in the National Hockey League.

The Atlanta Braves announced Monday they hope to acquire a franchise in Atlanta when the National Hockey League expands.

Then once the game started, I had a lot of confidence that I could get them out because my pitches were working."

Lou Brock was one of the batters against whom his pitches were working. Brock is 8-for-12 against the other Boston pitchers but 0-for-8 against Lonborg.

While Lonborg was stifling St. Louis again, the Red Sox were making a little more progress than they had in the previous two games—even if two of their runs were unearned.

Singles by Joe Foy and Ken

Harrelson sandwiched around Mike Andrews' sacrifice and Mike Shannon's error on the hunt brought Boston its first run in the third inning.

It came off starter Steve Carlton, a 22-year-old lefty who was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth inning after allowing just three hits.

The Red Sox added a clinching pair of runs in the ninth. After they loaded the bases against Ron Willis on a walk to George Scott, Reggie Smith's double and an intentional walk to Rico Petrocelli, Elston Howard blooped a single off Jack Lamabe into right field.

Scott raced home and Smith followed when Maris' throw to the plate was wild.

When Maris countered with his homer in the bottom of the inning, it was too little.

Cage Star Calls Pro Basketball Situation Unfair

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Rick Barry, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer last season and now affiliated with the new American Basketball Association, said Monday "it's been unfair to the players to have only one pro league."

"People misunderstand about the NBA," said the former San Francisco Warrior now under contract to the Oakland Oaks. "Only a few young players make the NBA each year. There are few opportunities, and it's just tough to make a team or even improve."

Barry said players coming out of college now have better chances for making a name and money in the new league.

The tentative date is Jan. 9, either in the State Fairgrounds Coliseum (10,000 capacity) where the Pacers play their home games or Butler University's Hinkle Fieldhouse (14,000).

After Barry switched to the Oaks, San Francisco owner Franklin Mieuli gained a court injunction barring the superstar from playing in the ABA this season. Barry is sitting out the season rather than play with the Warriors.

Explaining his move, Barry said, "I love the game, but it's business to me. The basic reason I changed was financial—that and my father-in-law (former Miami Coach Bruce Hale, who now is directing the Oaks)."

Mets Consider Hodges As Estrum's Successor

BOSTON (AP) — The New York Mets, shopping for a new manager, have received the Washington Senators' permission to negotiate with Gil Hodges, but more than that the principals aren't saying.

Hodges, former Brooklyn Dodger star who managed the Senators to an encouraging tie for sixth place in the American League this season, still has a year left on his Washington contract, but Mets' president Bing Devine is expected to try to lure him back to New York.

Hodges has been prominently mentioned as a likely candidate to replace Wes Westrum, who resigned shortly before the season ended, but so far the Mets have denied they have talked with him.

Now that the Senators have given the go-ahead, Devine will probably make Hodges an offer soon, but Hodges was unavailable for comment.

Pros Agree Golf Courses Need Change

LONDON (AP) — Arnold Palmer and Gary Player came to town today and while they might disagree on which of their sweaters, shoes and clubs are better, these two giants of the game agreed on one thing:

Golf courses have to undergo a change.

Player and Palmer converged on London to compete in the fourth renewal of the Piccadilly World Match Play championship.

Straight from Tokyo and Italy and France, the two champions meet head on at Wentworth starting Thursday in the eight-man invitation tournament which has become one of the great title play competitions left to those who believe in match as against medal play.

Said Player: "The architects, especially in the United States, have to stop building courses so long. It's not necessary. People play golf to enjoy it and they should be allowed to enjoy it. It's all right for me no matter how long they are but we are talking about those who play the game for pleasure."

Said Palmer: "Golf courses are arranged for the professional to beat them. He should beat par. The scratch player should equal it. That's the way I see it."

Meanwhile Gay Brewer, reigning U.S. Masters champion from Dallas, pocketed a first prize of $55,000 in the Alcan Golfer of the Year Tournament at St. Andrews. He beat Billy Casper, former U. S. Open champion, by four strokes in an 18-hole playoff and then caught a plane to try and win the Match Play championship at Wentworth.

Casper, who won $15,000, also left Scotland to play at Wentworth.

Iles Loft Wins Race

The Iles Loft of Circleville had the top pigeons in the second 200 mile young bird race from Corbin, Ky. The winning speed was 1473.4903 yards per minute.

Second place went to Virgil Russell's bird with a speed of 1471.9268 yards per minute, while the Iles loft came back to win third place with a speed of 1459.9396 yards per minute, and tenth.

Homer Kustz of Chillicothe placed fourth, fifth and sixth. Other lofts were entered by Ron Arledge, eighth, tenth, and 11th; John Grabins ninth; Larry Collins 11th; Stan Crosby, 12th; Leach and Myers, 13th; Junior Hoffman, 15th.

The nomination bird and loft derby was won by the Iles loft. There were nine lofts and 66 birds competing in the race.

Lonborg Wants Another Crack at St. Louis; Terms 3-1 Red Sox Victory A 'Mind Tonic'

BOSTON (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals still have to drive 27 nails.

Manager Dick Williams of Boston said it before Monday's game, and the statement was still pertinent after the Red Sox defeated the Cardinals 3-1 in St. Louis and sliced their World Series deficit to three games to two.

The Cardinals got the 27 outs they needed, but in between some of them the Red Sox scored three runs and that was all Jim Lonborg needed.

Lonborg, the prime candidate for the American League's Cy Young Award, missed matching his second-game shutout when Roger Maris homered with two out in the ninth inning.

He still wound up with a three-hitter and a record for allowing the fewest hits in two consecutive Series games. He stopped the Cardinals on one hit last Thursday.

Now it's up to Gary Waslewski, a 28-year-old right-hander, to keep the Series alive for Lonborg to come back in the seventh game. When the teams resume here Wednesday, Waslewski will be opposed by Dick Hughes, the loser in Lonborg's first victory.

Any postponements because of rain might entice Williams to switch to Lonborg for the sixth game, but right now the man is Waslewski, who pitched three perfect innings of relief in the third game. He was 2-2 during the season.

Lonborg, who previously this year has pitched with just two days rest twice, isn't afraid of the seventh game, in which he would tangle with Bob Gibson, St. Louis' two-game winner.

"I can go in the seventh game," he said while treating his precious right arm with ice. "The body needs the rest, but the mind can come back. The mind can do wonderful things. It really can get you up."

"I think the fact that they beat us two in a row put some doubts in our mind, but his game reaffirms our belief that we can beat them."

So far, however, only Lonborg has been able to beat them. The 24-year-old right-hander never was in trouble Monday, and after the Red Sox picked up a pair of runs in the top of the ninth even Maris' homer didn't bother him.

The only other hits he allowed were singles by Dal Maxvill in the third and Maris in the fourth.

"I thought when I came into the game I was psychologically ready, and I thought I could beat them," said the Red Sox ace who pitched for the third time in nine days and the fifth time in 16 days.

"I didn't feel any pressure. As soon as I walk across the white line, it's just another game."

Eyes Hockey Franchise

ATLANTA (AP) — In two years Atlanta has become a major sports city with the coming of major league baseball, professional football and professional soccer. Now, the city is casting covetous eyes on a franchise in the National Hockey League.

The Atlanta Braves announced Monday they hope to acquire a franchise in Atlanta when the National Hockey League expands.

Then once the game started, I had a lot of confidence that I could get them out because my pitches were working."

Lou Brock was one of the batters against whom his pitches were working. Brock is 8-for-12 against the other Boston pitchers but 0-for-8 against Lonborg.

While Lonborg was stifling St. Louis again, the Red Sox were making a little more progress than they had in the previous two games—even if two of their runs were unearned.

Singles by Joe Foy and Ken

Harrelson sandwiched around Mike Andrews' sacrifice and Mike Shannon's error on the bunt brought Boston its first run in the third inning.

It came off starter Steve Carlton, a 22-year-old lefty who was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth inning after allowing just three hits.

The Red Sox added a clinching pair of runs in the ninth. After they loaded the bases against Ron Willis on a walk to George Scott, Reggie Smith's double and an intentional walk to Rico Petrocelli. Elston Howard blooped a single off Jack Lamabe into right field.

Scott raced home and Smith followed when Maris' throw to the plate was wild.

When Marvis countered with his homer in the bottom of the inning, it was too little.

CHS Booster Meet Slated

Queen's Pagan Lebanon Winner

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Queen's Pagan, a four-year-old bay gelding, put on a strong kick to win the featured eighth race at Lebanon Raceway by one length Monday night.

The winner trotted the pace mile in 2:09 and paid $6.60, $2.40 and $2.20. Second was Fishing Lady, who paid $2.40 and $2.20. Chief Worthy was the show horse, paying $2.40.

Jim Potter, Troy, drove the winner.

Harold's Filly, in the first race, and Jill's Pride, in the second, combined for a daily double of $20.40.

The Cardinal dressing room was subdued, but not concerned. Julian Javier, who made another spectacular play at second base to match his gem in the second game, summed up the Cardinals' feelings.

"We're going to beat them there (in Boston)," he predicted. "We still have the hammer and we're still in front." The Cardinals still have a 3-2 lead in the best-of-7 series.

Carl Yastrzemski, the Boston left fielder, said, "They're going to know they've been in a fight." And despite the Cardinal lead he said the pressure is now on the Cardinals.

"You can bet they're thinking about the last two games in Fenway Park," Yaz commented. "Yeah, we're going back to that Green Monster — the left field wall."

And Boston second baseman Mike Andrews found a parallel between the Series and Boston's fairy tale finish in the American League. Boston beat the favored Minnesota Twins in the last two games of the regular season to win the pennant.

"It's the same situation as against Minnesota, when we had to win two for the pennant," he said.

"Now we'll have our home fans rooting for us. We've had our backs to the wall all season and I guess you might say that this is the way it should be. Things don't come easy for us."

Manager Dick Williams said rookie right-hander Waslewski would be Boston's starter during the regular season Waslewski started only eight games and had a 2-2 record. The Cardinals saw Waslewski for three innings in Saturday's game. He didn't give up hit and struck out three.

Red Schoendienst said Hughes would pitch Wednesday

Hughes To Oppose Boston Newcomer

BOSTON (AP) — Dick Hughes is going to keep his pitches "high and tight, low and away" when he starts against the Boston Red Sox Wednesday and Boston Manager Dick Williams is going to keep the St.

Substitution Proved Costly To Cardinals

BOSTON (AP) — If only Red Schoendienst had known Roger Maris was going to hit a homer with two out in the ninth, he wouldn't have lifted Steve Carlton for a pinch hitter in the sixth inning of Monday's fifth World Series game.

As Schoendienst hardly could expect a home run off Jim Lonborg, who had shut out his St. Louis Cardinals with one hit Thursday and threatened to blank them again Monday, any second guessing has to be purely academic.

There were some eyebrows lifted in the press coop when Schoendienst sent up Bob Tolan to bat for Carlton leading off the sixth. The Cards trailed only 1-0 at the time and the one runoff 22-year-old Carlton had been unearned.

"We had to try to get a run," said Schoendienst. "Carlton still was real strong."

Tolan struck out and the Cards never did get their run until two were out in the ninth. By that time they were trailing 3-0.

The young lefty yielded the unearned run in the third after Joe Foy singled and Mike Shannon fumbled Mike Andrews' sacrifice bunt. He blew a third called strike past Carl Yastrzemski but yielded a run-scoring single by Ken Harrelson.

Boston put it away in the ninth when Ron Willis, third Card pitcher, loaded the bases on a walk to George Scott, a double by Reggie Smith and an international pass to Rico Petrocelli.

After throwing one ball to Elston Howard, Willis was replaced by Jack Lamabe. Howard singled down the line in right, scoring Scott. Maris hurried throw to the plate was high for an error, permitting Smith to also score.

Hayes Optimistic, But Reserved About Gridiron Clash with Purdue

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We felt we did a little better than the week before," a relaxed Woody Hayes told his weekly press luncheon Monday.

"We feel the Oregon victory gave us confidence but we still have to improve," Hayes noted, obviously pleased with Ohio State's 20-0 romp over Oregon after a season-opening 14-7 loss to Arizona.

Improvement is a must if the Buckeyes are to emerge victorious Saturday against mighty Purdue — unbeaten in three starts and conqueror of Notre Dame.

It's no secret that Hayes and

Co. have been pointing for the Boilermakers all spring.

A victory Saturday could put the Bucks on the right path to their first Big Ten championship since 1961 and their first Rose Bowl trip in 10 years.

As is his usual procedure before a key game, Hayes didn't even mention Purdue but chose instead to review the decision over Oregon.

"Our defense set the stage for the whole game," he said, lauding his defensive unit, which set up two touchdowns in the first six minutes with interceptions.

"There was obvious improvement in our passing and considerable improvement in our running, too," Hayes added.

If assistant Coach Esco Sarkkinen's scouting report is accurate, the Bucks' defense is in for its sternest test of the young season.

Purdue, in victories over Texas A & M, Notre Dame and Northwestern, has shown a strong passing attack and a steady running game.

"There are three factors that have made Purdue tough," Sarkkinen said.

He listed these as junior halfback Leroy Keyes, sophomore quarterback Mike Phipps and a strong second half offense that has brought Purdue comeback triumphs in all three contests.

Keyes, a sensational triple threat who makes the Boilermaker attack explosive, is used mostly as a flanker but can run and pass when Purdue goes to its I-formation.

The 6-foot-3, 200 pounder has caught 29 passes for 367 yards and three touchdowns and made two sensational grabs that brought Purdue from behind over Northwestern.

Keyes also has gained 106 yards in 29 carries and has completed two of five passes for 24 yards and one touchdown. Coach Jack Mollenkopf also uses Keyes in kickoffs and occasionally employs his star on defense.

Phipps, who Sarkkinen said has "a fine arm, very accurate," has completed 41 of 93 chucks for 742 yards and five touchdowns.

The Buckeye scout also singled out fullback Perry Williams, split end Jim Beirne and middle guard Chuck Kyle who anchors a good defense.

Williams, Purdue's top rusher, has netted 137 yards in 39 carries while Beirne has caught 11 passes for 190 yards and one score.

The game figures to be a sellout and Ohio hopes to add to its series lead which now stands at 13-6-2.

Hayes Optimistic, But Reserved About Gridiron Clash with Purdue

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We felt we did a little better than the week before," a relaxed Woody Hayes told his weekly press luncheon Monday.

"We feel the Oregon victory gave us confidence but we still have to improve," Hayes noted, obviously pleased with Ohio State's 20-0 romp over Oregon after a season-opening 14-7 loss to Arizona.

Improvement is a must if the Buckeyes are to emerge victorious Saturday against mighty Purdue — unbeaten in three starts and conqueror of Notre Dame.

It's no secret that Hayes and

Co. have been pointing for the Boilermakers all spring.

A victory Saturday could put the Bucks on the right path to their first Big Ten championship since 1961 and their first Rose Bowl trip in 10 years.

As is his usual procedure before a key game, Hayes didn't even mention Purdue but chose instead to review the decision over Oregon.

"Our defense set the stage for the whole game," he said, lauding his defensive unit, which set up two touchdowns in the first six minutes with interceptions.

"There was obvious improvement in our passing and considerable improvement in our running, too," Hayes added.

If assistant Coach Esco Sarkkinen's scouting report is accurate, the Bucks' defense is in for its sternest test of the young season.

Purdue, in victories over Texas A & M, Notre Dame and Northwestern, has shown a strong passing attack and a steady running game.

"There are three factors that have made Purdue tough," Sarkkinen said.

He listed these as junior half-back Leroy Keyes, sophomore quarterback Mike Phipps and a strong second half offense that has brought Purdue comeback triumphs in all three contests.

Keyes, a sensational triple threat who makes the Boilermaker attack explosive, is used mostly as a flanker but can run and pass when Purdue goes to its I-formation.

The 6-foot-3, 200 pounder has caught 29 passes for 367 yards and three touchdowns and made two sensational grabs that brought Purdue from behind over Northwestern.

Keyes also has gained 106 yards in 29 carries and has completed two of five passes for 24 yards and one touchdown. Coach Jack Mollenkopf also uses Keyes in kickoffs and occasionally employs his star on defense.

Phipps, who Sarkkinen said has "a fine arm, very accurate," has completed 41 of 93 chucks for 742 yards and five touchdowns.

The Buckeye scout also singled out fullback Perry Williams, split end Jim Beirne and middle guard Chuck Kyle who anchors a good defense.

Williams, Purdue's top rusher, has netted 137 yards in 39 carries while Beirne has caught 11 passes for 190 yards and one score.

The game figures to be a sellout and Ohio hopes to add to its series lead which now stands at 13-6-2.

U.S. Warplanes Ravage Arsenal

SAIGON (AP) — American Navy planes today attacked and left burning a sprawling military compound near Hoiphong where Russian missiles and helicopters are uncrated and assembled.

It was likely that Soviet technicians work in the base, which previously was on the Pentagon's restricted target list.

U.S. headquarters said all-weather intruder jets hit the base before dawn Monday and returned for a second predawn strike Tuesday. Pilots reported that flames and secondary explosions lighted the night sky.

Heavy new strikes on North Vietnam and the loss of an American jet to a Communist MIG21 in a dogfight was paralleled by sharp ground fighting and the movement of more American troops north to meet the threat of renewed North Vietnamese attacks below the demilitarized zone.

U.S. Command also announced that a U.S. Air Force

Stock Mart Prices Even

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market turned mixed early this afternoon after showing a small gain during the morning.

Advances and declines among individual stocks were almost in balance and the averages moved only slightly.

Trading was active. Brokers said a pulse by the market for consolidation at this stage wouldn't be surprising despite the continuing speculation of demand for stocks by the threat of inflation.

The market had advanced in its three previous sessions.

Steels, rubbers and oils were mostly higher. Motors, aircraft and airline declined.

Changes of most key issues were fractional with a few going to a point or so.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 0.75 at 934.06.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was unchanged at 336.8 with industrials up 1.0, rails off .6 and utilities off .2.

Wake Up Your PERISTALSIS And Be Your SMILING BEST

Peristalsis is the muscular action of your digestive system. When peristaltic action slows down, waste materials can build up in the lower tract. You can become irregular, uncomfortable, stuffed. The unique laxative formula of today's Carter's Pills gives effective, temporary relief of the irregularity by activating the slowed-down muscles of the lower tract and stimulating peristalsis. So if you're sluggish due to irregularity, take Carter's Pills to wake up your peristalsis and you'll bounce back to your smiling best. Millions of satisfied users take Carter's Pills for effective temporary relief of irregularity. Why don't you, 48%.

Congress Faces Integrity Test Over Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The extent to which members of Congress, many of whom have called for cutbacks in federal spending, want to practice economy in politically sensitive areas is getting a good test this week.

If their reaction is anything like that of the nation's governors, outraged protest is likely to ring out on Capitol Hill.

The Johnson administration asked the 50 governors to comment on what would happen if up to half their federal highway funds were held back. Virtually all governors responding so far have strongly protested such a move would cripple their road programs.

The administration is under congressional pressure to cut federal budget spending by about $5 billion if it wants to see its 10 per cent income tax surcharge bill passed. Holding back the highway money wouldn't affect the budget since the funds are held in a separate pool of gas tax revenue which cannot be spent for any other purpose. But withholding the funds could have a dampening effect on the economy.

Congressional reaction to cutbacks is likely to emerge when Congress takes up this week three items that reach into every state and every congressional district—public works, military construction and the pay of federal workers.

In the first such test, the Senate rejected 60 to 12 Monday a proposal by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., to cut back new starts in the public works program. Debate continues today on the $4.7 billion measure, which includes funds for the Atomic Energy Commission as well as the o-called "pork barrel" projects.

Williams said his proposed cut would have affected about $395 million in projects.

The House, meanwhile, takes up a budget-busting omnibus measure to raise postal rates and the pay of federal employees. Final action is expected Wednesday on the measure, which eventually could cost three times as much as the new revenue it will produce.

The House Armed Services Committee planned to question Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara today about a 30-day Pentagon freeze announced last week on nearly $350 million earmarked for military construction projects.

Two House Appropriations subcommittees planned to meet to see where money earlier appropriated for Treasury-Post Office and legislative affairs can now be rescinded.

Pop Artist Disappoints University Students

MADISON, N.J. (AP) —Pop artist and underground movie maker Andy Warhol disappointed 500 Drew University students Monday night because "we didn't get two words out of him," a student association official said.

As a result, the association "intended to review," an agreement to pay Warhol $750 for a show entitled "Pop Art in Action," said association President Thomas McMullen.

The students who crowded into a campus gymnasium expected Warhol to talk on pop art and film making. Instead, Warhol showed half-hour film and answered questions with a yes, or no.

Red Sox Confident In Spite of Odds

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, still alive in the World Series, came home to a tumultuous welcome and a day of rest before facing monumental task against the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday.

Some 1,000 fans greeted the American League champion Red Sox at Logan International Airport late Monday night when they arrived by chartered plane from St. Louis, broke through police lines and mobbed the players who had pulled out a 3-1 victory over the Cardinals in the fifth game of the 1967 World Series Monday.

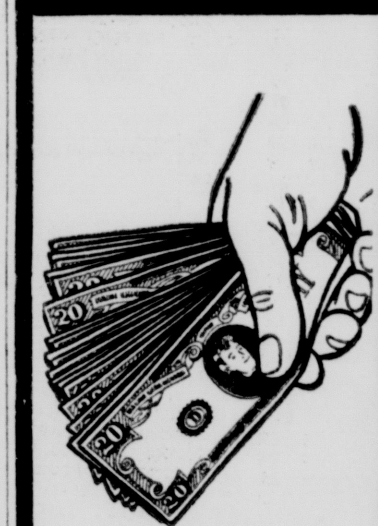

"Youth is going to be served, believe me," yelled Red Sox slugger Carl Yastrzemski to the youthful crowd of supporters. "We've got a lot of young ball-players. Don't worry about us. We're going to win."

But the odds are against it. Boston still trails 3-2 in games in the best of seven series and St. Louis needs only to win one more game to clinch the world championship.

Today is a day of rest. The sixth game is scheduled Wednesday and the seventh, if necessary, is scheduled Thursday. Gary Walewski of Boston, who had a 2-2 record during the

U.S. Warplanes Ravage Arsenal

SAIGON (AP) — American Navy planes today attacked and left burning a sprawling military compound near Hoiphong where Russian missiles and helicopters are uncrated and assembled.

It was likely that Soviet technicians work in the base, which previously was on the Pentagon's restricted target list.

U.S. headquarters said all-weather intruder jets hit the base before dawn Monday and returned for a second predawn strike Tuesday. Pilots reported that flames and secondary explosions lighted the night sky.

Heavy new strikes on North Vietnam and the loss of an American jet to a Communist MIG21 in a dogfight was paralleled by sharp ground fighting and the movement of more American troops north to meet the threat of renewed North Vietnamese attacks below the demilitarized zone.

U.S. Command also announced that a U.S. Air Force

C130 transport with a crew of five and 18 passengers has been missing between Da Nang and Hue since Sunday. All 18 passengers are believed to be American servicemen, the headquarters said.

A spokesman said there was no information on the cause of the crash, but the weather in that area had been bad for several days.

The U.S. Command said a 4,000-man Army brigade has been shifted into the 1st Corps area, raising American manpower in South Vietnam's five northernmost provinces to about 100,000 and releasing another Marine regiment for duty closer to the DMZ.

As late as last spring, only about 40,000 Americans—two Marine divisions—were stationed in the 1st Corps area.

The missile and helicopter assembly site attacked Monday and today is in an area containing about 70 military barracks and other buildings. It is about three miles from Haiphong, between the city and the MIG airfield of Cat Bi, which also was bombed for the second today.

Pilots from the carrier Constellation said the flames from the burning military base could be seen 20 miles away. The helicopter assembly area was first hit one day after American pilots discovered six Russian choppers on the ground west of Hanoi and destroyed them.

The choppers included two MiG models which are the biggest such aircraft in the world, capable of carrying 120 troops or transporting the 40-foot SAM missiles which Russia supplies for the North Vietnamese anti-aircraft defenses.

Although bad weather over part of the North cut missions to a below-normal 94 on Monday, the air planners poured in strikes heavily where the weather permitted and struck far above the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

Air Force strikes on the two rail lines from Hanoi to Red China brought out harassing flights of MIG21s, the most advanced attack planes in the North Vietnamese armory.

One flight of MIGs bore in on a mission of slower F105 Thunderchiefs bombing the Quang Kien rail causeway 39 miles northeast of Hanoi. The MIGs shot down one Thunderchief and the pilot was missing. No further details of the dogfight were announced by the Air Force.

The Thunderchief was the 695th U.S. combat plane lost over the North and the 29th shot down by MIGs. American pilots are credited with 85 MIG kills and another 12 probable.

Air Force pilots also said they caught about 25 boxcars jammed in the Yen Bai yards on the northwest rail line. They reported heavy explosions in the middle of the concentration before the target was obscured by smoke and dust.

The heaviest ground activity was reported in the 1st Corps area just below the DMZ. The U.S. Marines said they were establishing a new regiment-size fortress above the northernmost provincial capital of Quang Tri City.

Congress Faces Integrity Test Over Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The extent to which members of Congress, many of whom have called for cutbacks in federal spending, want to practice economy in politically sensitive areas is getting a good test this week.

If their reaction is anything like that of the nation's governors, outraged protest is likely to ring out on Capitol Hill.

The Johnson administration asked the 50 governors to comment on what would happen if up to half their federal highway funds were held back. Virtually all governors responding so far have strongly protested such a move would cripple their road programs.

The administration is under congressional pressure to cut federal budget spending by about $5 billion if it wants to see its 10 per cent income tax surcharge bill passed. Holding back the highway money wouldn't affect the budget since the funds are held in a separate pool of gas tax revenue which cannot be spent for any other purpose. But withholding the funds could have a dampening effect on the economy.

Congressional reaction to cutbacks is likely to emerge when Congress takes up this week three items that reach into every state and every congressional district—public works, military construction and the pay of federal workers.

In the first such test, the Senate rejected 60 to 12 Monday a proposal by Sen. John F. Williams, R-Del., to cut back new starts in the public works program. Debate continues today on the $4.7 billion measure, which includes funds for the Atomic Energy Commission as well as the so-called "pork barrel" projects.

Williams said his proposed cut would have affected about $395 million in projects.

The House, meanwhile, takes up a budget-busting omnibus measure to raise postal rates and the pay of federal employees. Final action is expected Wednesday on the measure, which eventually could cost three times as much as the new revenue it will produce.

The House Armed Services Committee planned to question Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara today about a 30-day Pentagon freeze announced last week on nearly $350 million earmarked for military construction projects.

Two House Appropriations subcommittees planned to meet to see where money earlier appropriated for Treasury-Post Office and legislative affairs can now be rescinded.

Pop Artist Disappoints University Students

MADISON, N.J. (AP) — Pop artist and underground movie maker Andy Warhol disappointed 500 Drew University students Monday night because "we didn't get two words out of him," a student association official said.

As a result, the association "intended to review," an agreement to pay Warhol $750 for a show entitled "Pop Art in Action," said association President Thomas McMullen.

The students who crowded into a campus gymnasium expected Warhol to talk on pop art and film making. Instead, Warhol showed half-hour film and answered questions with a yes, or no.

members and friends are cordially invited to attend all or any of these services.

Red Sox Confident In Spite of Odds

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, still alive in the World Series, came home to a tumultuous welcome and a day of rest before facing monumental task against the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday.

Some 1,000 fans greeted the American League champion Red Sox at Logan International Airport late Monday night when they arrived by chartered plane from St. Louis, broke through police lines and mobbed the players who had pulled out a 3-1 victory over the Cardinals in the fifth game of the 1967 World Series Monday.

"Youth is going to be served, believe me," yelled Red Sox slugger Carl Yastrzemski to the youthful crowd of supporters. "We've got a lot of young ball-players. Don't worry about us. We're going to win."

But the odds are against it. Boston still trails 3-2 in games in the best of seven series and St. Louis needs only to win one more game to clinch the world championship.

Today is a day of rest. The sixth game is scheduled Wednesday and the seventh, if necessary, is scheduled Thursday. Gary Walewski of Boston, who had a 2-2 record during the regular season, is scheduled to oppose Dick Hughes, 16-6, of St. Louis in the sixth game.

Should Boston pull that one out, the Cardinals' Bob Gibson, ace of the staff and winner of two World Series games, will oppose Boston's Jim Lonborg, who won his second game of the Series Monday with a three-hit effort.

Should it go that far, however, Gibson will be pitching with three days rest and Lonborg with two.

The Weather Bureau forecast scattered showers in the morning Wednesday, partly cloudy in the afternoon with chance of occasional showers, high temperatures in the upper 50s or low 60s. It estimated a 30 per cent chance of showers at game time.

Post Office Bids Accepted For Orient

Bids for Orient's new post office are now being accepted, according to Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien.

The building is to be built according to departmental specifications and to be located on the east side of Stahl Road where the Post Office Department presently holds an option.

The new building will be built with private capital and will be privately owned. The government will then rent the office from the owners.

The privately owned post office building will be one of 44,000 such buildings, as opposed to only 3,000 government owned offices.

Information on bidding and all necessary documents may be obtained from Regional Real Estate Officer D. J. Gaughan, Post Office Department, P. O. Box 1999, Cincinnati.

Stock Mart Prices Even

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market turned mixed early this afternoon after showing a small gain during the morning.

Advances and declines among individual stocks were almost in balance and the averages moved only slightly.

Trading was active. Brokers said a pulse by the market for consolidation at this stage wouldn't be surprising despite the continuing speculation of demand for stocks by the threat of inflation.

The market had advanced in its three previous sessions. Steels, rubbers and oils were mostly higher. Motors, aircraft and airline declined.

Changes of most key issues were fractional with a few going to a point or so.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 0.75 at 934.06.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was unchanged at 336.8 with industrials up 1.0, rails off .6 and utilities off .2.
